Secret evidence is leaked again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secret House Judiciary Committee impeachment evidence has been made public for the second time in as many days, suggesting a crack in the committee's tight security that before this week had not been breached.

The latest disclosure was published in The Washingotn Post. It was the committee's transcript of a key Watergate conversation — that of Sept. 15, 1972, between President Nixon, then White House Counsel John W. Dean III and former presidential Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman.

As a result of yet another leak, the Post also reported today on the contents of a tape the committee heard Wednesday. The tape was of a short conversation June 30, 1972, between Nixon, Haldeman and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

The Post did not reveal how it obtained the two transcripts, but the story on the June 30 meeting referred to comments by committee sources on why that transcript was included in the evidence.

Reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward quoted one source as saying " ... it shows part of a pattern to keep the lid on ... and the President is in on it early."

In an introductory paragraph to the side-by-side comparison of the Sept. 15 conversation, the Post said the Judiciary Committee's transcript was compiled by the committee's staff from a tape recording received by the special Watergate prosecutor's office.

Post reporter Lawrence Meyer said the committee's version and the White House version of the Sept. 15 conversations showed significant differences and that "lengthy passages were omitted in the White House version without any indication that material was excised.

In releasing the 1,254 pages of Nixon trancripts April 30, the White House said it was an edited version, from which national security information and conversations irrelevant to Watergate were deleted.

Meyer said that one of the differences between the two versions of the Sept. 15 conversation occurred when Nixon was speaking to Dean about U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey. He had been assigned to the civil suit by the Democrats against the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Meyer said the White House version of that conversation did not include, as did the committee version, Nixon saying "good" when Dean told him Richey had discussed the case off the bench.

The committee's version of that part of the conversation was reported to be:

Dean: Well, he's (Richey) been thoroughly candid in his dealing with people about the case. He's made several entrees, uh off the bench, to uh, one to Kleindienst, two to, uh, his old friend Roemer McPhee, to keep abreast of what his thinking is. He told Roemer he thought that Maury ought to file a libel action.

Nixon: Did he?

After laughter by Haldeman, the President was quoted again as saying: "Good."

Meyer said the Judiciary Committee version of the conversation also differs in numerous instances on specific words used by the participants, as well as, in at leastv3$pn)$nstance, the identity of the speaker.

If the material is not turned over, the panel is expected to issue a subpoena.

Layton Pickard is named Charleston Man of Year

CHARLESTON — Layton Pickard, cashier of First Secrurity State Bank, was honored Thursday night as the Lions Club Man of the Year at the eighth annual Man of the Year banquet in the National Guard Armory.

State Sen. William Cason of Clinton, president pro tem of the Missouri Senate, was the featured speaker.

Pickard, who was introduced by H. R. Hequembourg, vice president of the Lions Club, was cited as a man who has served his country, his state, his county and his fellowman. He and his family moved to Charleston 12 years ago from Kennett, where he began his banking career as vice president of Cotton Exchange Bank.

At present, Pickard is president of the Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council and is vitally interested in the health services of the area, serving as a member of the board of St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau and Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

He also serves as president and treasurer of the Training Center for Retarded Children in Charleston and is vice president of the board of the Community Sheltered Workshop in Sikeston.

In addition, Pickard is a member of the local Urban Renewal Board, the Mississippi County Historical Society and the Memphis, Tenn., School of Banking. He is now serving as chairman of the board of stewards of the United Methodist Church, where he is also a substitute Sunday School teacher.

He is a past president of the Chamber of Commerce and served as a member of the industrial committee.

Born in Benton, Pickard moved to Kennett when he was a teen-ager and graduated from high school there. He is also a graduate of University of Missouri and for four years was an agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He also served his state as commissioner of finance.

Cited for his work with Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, Pickard was honored with the Silver Beaver award, one of the highest Boy Scout awards, last year by the Okeechobee District board, having served on the executive board 26 years. He has been a fund- raiser for the Girl Scouts for many years and has served as chairman of the United Fund drive.

Pickard and his wife Mancy are parents of three children, Lee Ann Jones and Jane Pickard of Memphis, Tenn., and Joe Pickard of the home. The Pickards also have two grandchildren.

An engraved plaque was presented to Pickard by Hequembourg, and Mrs. Pickard received a flower arrangement.

Sen. Cason, who was first elected to the Senate in 1960, was introduced by State Rep. Fred DeField. In his address, Cason criticized the people who are "knocking our country" and stated that things are not really as bad as some people may think.

"Without question, we have the very best form or system of government in the world and we can and will handle our problems, be drawn closer together and, by doing so, be stronger and better for it," he said.

Cason spoke briefly on the Watergate case and remarked that it wasn't the system that went wrong but an unofficial organization outside the National Republican Committee that was responsible.

"Some have tried to say that if a few go wrong, all are wrong. This isn't true. The Republican Party, like the Democratic Party, does not believe in burglary and committing crimes," he said.

Cason also remarked briefly on the Sunshine Bill,

County Court approves collector's tax report

BENTON — The Scott County Court announced Thursday that it has approved the collector's 1973 annual report of $3,807,476 in tax collections.

The funds were distributed as follows:

General revenue fund, $346,056; special road and bridge district, $213,050; school districts, $2,450,637; health, $76,180; library, $45,681; and Johnson grass control, $15,352.

Presiding Judge Les Lankford said the 1973 total is the most that has ever been collected in taxes for one year in Scott County.

The court also announced that it will donate $200 to the Heritage House recreation center for senior citizens in Sikeston for the purchase of a new stove.

Man arrested at bank

Jake Jones, 20, of St. Louis was arrested for stealing by deceit at 8:15 a.m. today at Bank of Sikeston by Sgt. Jack Patterson and Detective Dan Hinton for allegedly trying to withdraw $250 from the bank account of David L. Bean.

Jones, also known as Jake Hunt, is being held in the city jail, but will be turned over to Scott County authorities, Patterson said.

Jones allegedly had withdrawn money from Bean's account on three previous occasions. On Dec. 31, 1973, he reportedly withdrew $200; on Jan. 31, 1974, $225; and on March 1, 1974, $200.

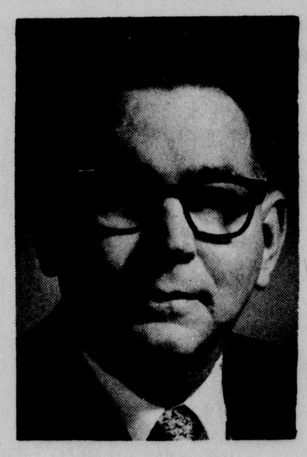

Lankford seeks judge seat

CHAFFEE — Les D. Lankford announces his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for second district associate judge of the Scott County Court in the Aug. 6 primary election.

Lankford has held the position of presiding judge of the County Court for four terms — a total of 16 years — and served as Scott County's representative in the 72nd General Assembly of the Missouri Legislature.

A life-long resident of Scott County, Lankford attended public school in Sikeston and Chaffee. He also attended University of Missouri in Columbia and the St. Louis School of Pharmacy. He is a registered pharmacist and has operated Lankford Drug Store since 1928.

Lankford is a member of the United Methodist Church of Chaffee, past exalted ruler of the Chaffee Elks Club and past president of both the Chaffee Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce.

Les Lankford

Lankford has served two terms as mayor of Chaffee and six terms as an alderman.

A life-long Democrat, he served as an honorary colonel on the staff of Gov. James T. Blair Jr. and was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles in 1960.

While serving as presiding judge, Lankford's name was added to the Leaders Honor Roll of the Univesity of Missouri Extension Division in recognition of his work in helping develop and carry out local extension programs. He was also named to the State Aid Road Committee in 1961.

Due to his experience in business, civic affairs, and state, county and city government, Lankford believes he is well acquainted with the problems that affect the citizens of Scott County, and if elected to the office of associate judge, Lankford says he will render fair, honest and courageous service as has been his custom in the past.

Madrid receives first star for community betterment

NEW MADRID — The first star in the Missouri Community Betterment Program was awarded Wednesday in community planning, and reaching the five-star status will be the goal of the chamber, President Bob Hedgepeth announced at the seventh annual Chamber of Commerce banquet Thursday.

Presently, there are just 26 cities out of approximately 330 statewide which are involved in the self- help Community Betterment Program that have attained five- star rating.

Other categories requiring certain minimum standards in municipal facilities are education, utilities, transportation and community services.

Hedgepeth emphasized the tremendous asset of five- star recognition to a community in attracting more industry, more people and economic growth. Ninety-one per cent of the new and expanding industries in the state within the past year have gone to Community Betterment towns.

Past president Clint Halstead was presented a plaque, as a citation of appreciation and in recognition of his dedicated leadership, by Mrs. Saundra Cope, vice president.

William Baird, newly appointed Community Betterment Committee chairman, accepted a plaque on behalf of the community betterment leaders and supporters. Cited were the Rev. E. E. Wolfe, former chairman, and Mrs. Dot Halstead, Mrs. Virginia Carlson, Mrs. Dorothy Edwards, Mrs. Virginia Recker, Robert Blom and Scott Harris.

Tribute was paid to the medical committee for its work in securing a physician. Community member J. Corbett Davis accepted the plaque from Mrs. Cope. Other members are chairman Sam L. Hunter Jr., Dr. Charles Baker, Bruce Allan, Clint Halstead, Dr. Sam Hedgepeth and Harold E. Hunter Jr.

Mrs. Dot Halstead, executive secretary of the chamber, was presented a bouquet of roses by F. M. Baird in recognition of her total involvement in all chamber projects.

In a review of 1973-74 chamber activities and achievements, Halstead said the chamber had focused its efforts toward city beautification, overcoming lack of medical facilities, economic growth and citizen involvement for the general improvement of the entire community.

In October 1973 at the Missouri Community Betterment Program conference in Jefferson City the New Madrid Community Betterment Committee received third place and a $400 cash award for its accomplishments.

Other achievements noted by Halstead included the placement of 15 redwood planter boxes, containing shrubs and flowers and matching trellises between buildings across open alleyways along Main Street; securing a medical doctor, Dr. T. Pattaropong; and leasing the medical building for one year, plus spearheading a drive to raise funds for additional medical equipment.

A $10,000 goal was surpassed by $8,000, which, Halstead said, proved true community involvement.

Other activities include recent purchase of a building by the chamber for establishment of a historical museum, continuing efforts to promote the community merchants and economic growth and work in the development and improvement of two city parks.

Featured speaker Jerry Shirley of Jefferson City, Southeast Missouri area community betterment specialist for the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, spoke on the topic, "My Town".

"People are the heart and soul of any community -- it cannot live, it cannot progress, it cannot maintain its place in society without the wholehearted cooperation of its people," Shirley said.

Continuing, he said, "Opportunity never knocks. It has to be found, and when once found, it must be expanded on, or failure is certain. People who get on in

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Have you ever heard of a wedding that suited both the bride and the mother?

* * *

PUZZLING PARANORMALITY

Even the experts are puzzled by the fact — turned up in a recent survey covering two decades — that the American death rate for such well- known and common killers as heart attacks have taken a definite drop. According to the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Walfare, the numbers of people dying from heart disease for the past ten years is some 15% less than the numbers who were killed by heart failures from ten to twenty years ago. The experts say that although they are happy to report their findings, they haven't yet decided precisely why several other of the best - known "killer" diseases also claim less victims.

Inevitably, however, everybody must die from something. Nevertheless, it is a bit surprising to find that the increase in death rates has occurred in accidents, murders, and suicides.

Since one would expect that a healthier people would also be a happier people, it will take someone wiser than us to explain why people who are killed less often by old- fashioned bugs should kill themselves more often. Wonder what Editor it was who first wrote, "The older I get — the less I know"?

THIS WAY TO HOP BOTTOM

They were a colorful and imaginative people, those pioneers who left us with such names as Hinkey Dinkey, Rough and Ready, Goose Pimple Junction, Hop Bottom and many others familiar to toponymy buffs (toponymy is the study of place names).

But times change and maps must, too.

According to Donald J. Orth, head of the Domestic Names Section of the U. S. Geological Survey, and also executive secretary for domestic names of the U. S. Board on Geographic Names, the present climate is more relaxed toward suggestive names (although a long- standing "cleaning up" process continues; for instance, a place in Oregon which once mean a house of ill repute now appears on the maps as Naughty Girl Meadow).

The names that give the most trouble these days, says Orth, are those which were once thought to be humorous or picturesque but are now considered offensive or derogatory because of our changing social climate. The largest group are those which contain racial or ethnic slurs.

In considering names submitted for decisions, the board follows a general rule that any name that is in common local use and is not considered offensive by the local resident is acceptable for map use.

THE MAN NEXT DOOR

One of the tragedies of ar age in which fewer and fewe people know what it takes to produce food from the land is the blind resentment toward producers when the price of a beefsteak inches upwards a few cents. When Life magazine ran a feature on "Meat Counter Miseries," it perhaps unconsciously dramatized the gulf of misunderstanding between city and farm. It told of a family of suburban dwellers with a backyard swimming pool, two cars and other conveniences and luxuries of city life that apparently could not make ends meet -- because of high meat prices. Readers could easily overlook the less dramatic aspects of the article which told of the high costs of meat production from range to dinner table over which the meat industry has no control. Commenting on the Life piece, a meat industry official said: "... you've clearly shown that the price of meat is not due to so-called middlemen and farmer profiteering at the public's expense, but the price of putting the product from ranch and feedlot into and out of the retail counter. The people between the farmer and consumer are literally millions of other consumers who draw wages in the meat- food industry -- butchers, checkout counter girls, stockboys, truck drivers, tire salesmen, meat inspectors, secretaries, packinghouse workers -- in thousands of job descriptions. The honest, hard-working man next door is the middle- man, not some cabal of conspirators."

American agriculture is the most efficient on earth -- and so are the processing and distribution channels that bring the abundance of the farm to the family dinner table. This is one of the reasons why some people think there is a God-given right to cheap beefsteaks.

DON'T CLUTTER IT!

Every once in a while it is a good idea to go over some of the basic rules advertisers should follow in putting together an effective ad. Many times things can be overdone in a sincere effort to improve an ad's appearance. Edmund Arnold, one of the country's leading experts on newspaper advertising lay-outs, has preached about these seven deadly ad sins:

. Avoid diagnoal lines. It's easy to tilt a line, especially with offset, but diagnonal lines break easy reading.

. Avoid upside down or sideways ads. They attract attention but so does a black eye. The object is to sell through your message and make it as effortless for your reader as possible.

. Avoid boxes and circles except in the best of circumstances.

. Avoid cluttering up signatures with type too large, pictures of owners, sales staff and other junk. Keep the signatures as clean as the copy.

. Avoid illustrations that don't add to your message. Don't use art just to fill up space.

FEDERAL AID NEEDED FOR US

What's a measly five billion dollars for foreign aid when we owe five hundred billion? The treasury department can just print some more money and nobody will care. However, we do. Have you seen a budget in years which provided something for reducing the national debt? Every time we have borrowed money in the past we were expected to not only pay interest but to make a substantial monthly payment on the principal. No wonder our dollar has deteriorated in foreign exchange, and the market is getting ever nearer to collapse. Have you read where any congressman advocates spending some of the tax money on paying off our national debt?

TAX LIMITATION: ITS TIME HAS COME

Amidst crisis and political turmoil -- energy, currency, defense, inflation, Watergate, etc. -- there is reason for optimism. It comes in the form of Constitutional Tax Limitation. This is the single most important issue for the American people to bring into the election campaigns.

Constitutional Tax Limitation is a plan with incredible appeal. With one master stroke we force government to do all the things we have so long urged: reduce taxes, spend only within its income, establish priorities, achieve some modicum of efficiency, etc.

In California, Gov. Ronald Reagan's Task Force on Tax Reduction found that the percentage of the personal income of the people of the state taken by government at all levels -- federal, state and local -- in 1930 was 15 per cent; by 1950 this figure had risen to 32 per cent. In 1970, California was at the 43 per cent mark, and today that figure is in excess of 44 cents out of every dollar of personal income. If history repeats itself, California will cross the 50 per cent mark shortly after 1980. Clearly, something has to be done before the private sector is entirely consumed.

The relatively close loss at the polls in California's special election last November on their Tax Limitation Amendments has not deterred nor discouraged adherents of the Tax Limitation concept around the nation.

State Rep. David Finney, a Democrat, is carrying an adoption of the plan in the Texas Constitutional Convention. Republican State Sen. Tom Sharp introduced Tax Limitation in the Michigan State Legislature earlier this year.

Democrat State Rep. Louis Jenkins introduced Tax Limitation last fall in the Louisiana State Constitutional Convention and, through it, won dramatic constitutional controls on state taxes there. At the direction of New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thompson, Charles Douglas, the governor's chief legal counsel, is developing a Tax Limitation plan for New Hampshire.

Legislators in both the Senate and the House in Florida are working on a design appropriate for the Sunshine State. Maryland, Minnesota and several other states are at various stages in the development of Tax Limitation plans.

Congressman Jack Kemp (R.-N.Y.) has introduced a resolution in the U. S. House which calls for an annual reduction in federal taxation - spending over a 25- year period and precludes any tax increases or deficit finacing, except in times of declared national emergency. Not only would this amendment get a handle on the inexorable growth of federal government, but it would limit expenditures to revenues, thereby reducing the main reason for inflation -- expansion of the money supply beyond real economic growth.

Before the effort at the federal level has any chance for success, Tax Limitation must sweep the several states. This is no simple task, but the political party in Kansas that makes Tax Limitation an issue will gain much of the support that Gov. Docking has found with his "tax lid" stand in the past.

NOW THEY'RE ACTING SENSIBLY

The State Legislature last week acted sensibly on at least several measures.

Two years or so ago Missourians voted against lotteries for religious, educational and charitable groups, pari-mutuel betting at the horse racing tracts Last week the House killed a similar bill which would have allowed another vote on the proposal. It is too soon to have another test vote on the measure and the House acted as it should have.

It also defeated an attempted raid on the state road tax money for use for mass transit systems in the cities. All the money the state can get, especially in this era of gasoline shortages, is needed on state highways, county roads and city streets. Mass transit should and must look elsehwere for its funds.

The auto no-fault insurance bill was perfected in the House and could well pass and become law. It would force everyone who gets a vehicle license to also have liability insurance and is expected to reduce insurance costs 15% the first year. We need this.

The House also passed the campaign finance disclosure bill, one that is needed so the people will know to whom candidates are obligated. In view of what happened in 1972, few people will disagree with this one.

There was also approval of a bill to limit corporate farming. It is designed to protect the smaller and individual farmer. It is also a measure that we believe is needed.

As anticipated, our Representative Osbourn favored all of these sensible actions.

WILLY GETS HIS REWARD

The unfortunate Willy Brandt, West Germany's Socialist proponent of detente with Soviet Russia and Red Satellite East Germany, has learned the hard way the rewards and gratitude to be received from dealing with communists.

The so- called "democratic" socialists, from Kerensky to Brandt, always think that the communists are basically no different than other people and can be reasoned with and accommodated. We have had our own government officials in high places who turned out to have been hood- winked by communist leaders and communist agents, but we have had no resignations by top leaders as a result.

Brandt's scandal over his close friend and aide, Guenter Guillaume, caused him to give up the top government post in West Germany. He had been warned a couple of years ago that his aide might be a security risk but he chose to ignore the cautions.

In our own land, apologists for leftists are trying to rehabilitate Alger Hiss and claim that he was not a Red agent. At least Brandt is not trying to cover up his own subversive scandal, as so many have been covered up in our own society. His resignation goes far to prove Brandt's basic integrity-- which had been doubted by many who better understand communists. We can hope that West Germany's security has not been irreparably harmed before the communist spy was exposed and that other well- meaning "co- existers" here and abroad will be awakened by this latest spy scandal. Front Running For Minorities:

Govt's Triple Offensive Ripping Open Industries, Fire, Police Depts. For Blacks, Women

WASHINGTON-- Soon enough you will be reading of women pulling out their hose. This won't be a peek into a boudoir. It will be a trip into some blazing building.

Or the report may have it that "she" pulled her gun in a shootout. These won't be esoteric accounts of some lone woman fire- fighter or cop. The federal government is determined to make it a way of life. It is part of a vast sweeping drive to rip open the rosters of fire and police departments, sanitation divisions, whole state and municipal governments for women on a man- to- man basis as well as for blacks, Puerto Ricans, Chicanos and Orientals. And it's not just talk.

This is the year of sex equality as well as for blacks and other minorities.

This is the year of triphammer civil court action, not only against cities and states, but against hundreds of corporations and unions. Already David Rose's Employment Section, Civil Rights Division (Justice Department), has moved against some 10 major cities and one state-- Maryland. And not only in the South where the federal government is concentrating on Jackson, Miss., to open all municipal divisions, especially the fire department, to women and blacks, but to major Northern communities.

These include Buffalo's fire department in behalf of blacks, Puerto Ricans and women; Philadelphia's police in behalf of women; Chicago's fire department in behalf of blacks and Spanish- surnamed persons, and against the Boston fire department for blacks. Also in other parts of the country: St. Louis, Dallas, Albuquerque, Los Angeles.

This is just the beginning. High Justice Department officials tell me they're about to file more antidiscrimination suits.

"We have been focusing on public employment," says David Rose, "and we will continue to do that. We will be filing suits regularly. We soon will be going to trial in Chicago. Then other cities to end all sorts of bans on race, sex and national origin in fire and police and other departments."

Actually this year of sex also will see the blacks and other minorities championed by a tough triple offensive. Already the Justice Department is hammering at the gates of 342 trucking corporations, hundreds of steel mills, scores of major firms such as Westinghouse which is fighting efforts to have its employment roster publicized and scores of unions.

And it all may prove costly-- in money-- to the unions as well as companies. Few have noticed that the United Steelworkers of America (AFL- CIO) agreed to pay $5 million of the $31 million it will cost labor and managment for back pay to minorities who were not promoted or who got clogged in the seniority list.

The union's international headquarters in Pittsburgh will pay labor's share. It can be expected that the Teamsters and the Machinists will be forced to follow this precedent when the final accord is settled between the sprawling trucking industry and the Justice Department. Next in line, according to reports, are sections of the building and construction field. This could cost the craft unions tens of millions of dollars in penalties. Also there is federal concentration on the oil industry, the banking and the broadcast media. And some, though not much, in "auto."

This reparation pay for those blacks, Puerto Ricans, Chicanos, Chinese and women who were not upgraded, or even not hired, may soon enough come to hundreds of millions of dollars. Further goals, some call it "quotas," will be set as in the consent decree between the Justice Department and the steel industry. For example: at least 25 per cent of the vacancies developing in supervisory jobs and openings in management training will have to be from either racial or sexual minority workers.

All these are actions paralleling Phil Davis's Office of Federal Contract Compliance. This deals with virtually all firms or persons doing business with the U. S. government. Billions of dollars worth of contracts are involved. The antidiscrimination pro- minority standards are the same: affirmative action, go out and find women, blacks, Chicanos et al., and hire them even if they haven't applied.

Racing alongside these offensives is the most intense campaign of all-- that of John Powell, Jr., new chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). He tells me that by June 30, the end of this fiscal year, his department will have received some 58,000 discrimination complaints. And that during the next "F.Y." there probably will be 80,000 more.

"I intend to develop more effective strategies," says Powell. "I am concerned that the process of handling a protest has taken 26 months. I intend to cut that time in half.

"We intend to move on a broad- gauge basis, analyze the types of problems in a particular industry or the number of complaints in it so we could move industry and countrywide."

These men mean what they say. They're not just talking about one black face above a white collar. Nor about one lady in a fire helmet or a woman with a cop's shield on her chest--- for the news and TV cameras.

They're talking of upgrading millions of minority workers everywhere.

'ALICE IN WASHINGTON'

WASHINGTON-- Alice was walking down Pennsylvania Avenue when the March Hare asked her, "How would you like to go to a White House press briefing?"

"What's a White House press briefing?" Alice asked.

"That is where they deny what they have already told you, which is the only reason it could be true," the March Hare said.

"It sounds like fun," Alice said.

The March Hare brought Alice into the press roon. A. chess pawn was standing at a podium.

"Who is that?" Alice asked.

"That is the press secretary. He talks in riddles. Listen."

"Why are transcripts better than tapes?" the press secretary asked.

"I don't know the answer to that one," Alice said to the March Hare. "Why are transcripts better than tapes?" she shouted to everyone's surprise.

The press secretary looked at her with cold blue eyes. "I refuse to comment on that."

Alice looked confused. "Why did he ask us a riddle if he can't give an answer to it?"

The March Hare said, "They don't tell him the answers; they just give him the riddles."

"What a stupid thing," Alice said. "Why is everyone writing in their notebooks?"

"They write down everything he says even though they don't believe him."

"Why don't they believe him?" Alice asked.

"Because he makes things up. He has to or there would be no reason to have a briefing."

The press secretary spoke again. "All the evidence is in and it proves beyond a reasonable doubt that the king is innocent of all crimes, ergo, ergo, ergo, et cetera."

"But what about the evidence the king refuses to turn over to the committee?" a dormouse asked.

"That is not evidence," the press secretary replied. "If there was further evidence to prove the king guilty, he would have gladly given it to the committee. The fact that he hasn't turned it over means regretfully there is none. It's as simple as that."

"It doesn't sound very simple to me," Alice said.

"Why can't we hear all the tapes," the Mock Turtle asked, "so we can decide for ourselves who is innocent and who si guilty?"

The press secretary replied, "If you heard the tapes it would only prove the innocent are guilty and the guilty are innocent and it would serve no purpose but to confuse you. Besides what you would hear is not what you have read and what you have read is not what you would hear, so it's better not to hear what cannot be read. Isn't that perfectly clear?"

"I feel I'm back at the Mad Hatter's tea party," Alice said.

"Now I will give you some important news today," the press secretary said. "This is on the record. 'Twas brillig and the slithy toves did gyre and gimble in the wabe: All mimsy were the borogoves, and the mome raths out grabe."

Everyone wrote it down.

"What did he say?" Alice asked.

"Nothing," the March Hare replied. "He's just stalling until he can go to lunch."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Klassen's Political Pattycake

WASHINGTON-- At the instigation of the White House, Postmaster General Ted Klassen held off postal rate increases during the 1972 campaign in order to avoid stirring up voter discontent against President Nixon.

Instead, Klassen cut back on postal workers and caused a slowdown of the mails. This developed into a mail debacle after the election, with Christmas deliveries stacked up days behind schedule and postmasters all over the country dumping mail on each other.

Yet when Klassen was hauled before the Senate Post Office Committee in early 1973 to explain the postal foul- up, he blamed it all on his zeal to cut costs. He deliberately misled the Senate by failing to mention the deal he had made with the White House to slash the postal force rather than raise postage prices.

Klassen played political pattycake with the President's campaign aides, despite the fact that the Postal Service had been reorganized as an independent agency for the specific purpose of removing it from politics.

In the past, the Post Office had often operated as a political arm of the President. But under the reorganization, it was supposed to be totally free of White House control, much less political influence.

The story of how Klassen put politics ahead of postal service is told in a secret White House memo. He was summoned before John Ehrlichman, then the White House domestic chief. The secret meeting was also attended by White House efficiency expert Fred Malek, whose job was to gear government action to getting President Nixon re- elected.

Reporting on the meeting in an April 17, 1972, memo, Malek described a plan to "cut the summer employment program and put a freeze on hiring" at the Postal Service. This would save the money that otherwise would have necessitated a rate rise, it was agreed.

"It was the combined judgment of the assembled group," wrote Malek, that this "course of action was within the range of political acceptability."

He reported that "the freeze on hiring should result in a reduction by attrition of 5,000 to 6,000 employes per month for the next 5- 6 months." While he realized this "substantial number" would cut into services, he argued this "would seem preferable to a rate increase."

Malek suggested another meeting "in about three months to assess progress and to determine actions and their political consequences." Three months later, the hiring freeze had crippled the Postal Service, mail deliveries were bogging down and Klassen was making speeches about how he was cutting costs.

He didn't mention that the sole purpose of his economies was to prevent a postage stamp increase, which postal technicians wanted in January 1973. Under the law, this would have required an announcement a few weeks before the November 1972 election. Of course, the price of mailing a first class letter has now gone up from eight to 10 cents.

Footnote: Malek told us he "attended the (secret) meeting as an observer, just to learn what the postal plans were." A spokesman for Klassen told my associate Les Whitten that Klassen had actually blocked a White House move to add extra summer workers and had decided on the freeze well before the controversial meeting with Ehrlichman and Malek. The spokesman denied Klassen's actions were designed to further the Nixon campaign.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Richard Sprague, the crusading U.S. attorney who believes in going after the top man in a criminal conspiracy, successfully prosecuted former mine workers boss Tony Boyle for murder. Now Sprague has finished reading the White House transcripts. His case against Boyle, he told us, wasn't as strong as the evidence implicating President Nixon in the Watergate coverup...The White House is obstructing the Senate Watergate Committee's investigation of presidential pal Bebe Rebozo. Aides have produced written authority from the President, claiming executive privilege and directing them not to testify about crucial matters. The President's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, and brothers, Donald and Edward, have also delayed responding to Senate subpoenas. Apparently, the White House strategy is to hold back until the committee goes out of business next May 28...

Rep. Otto Passman, D- La., the old House curmudgeon, offered to bet anyone at Duke Ziebert's restaurant $5,000 the other night that the House won't impeach President Nixon. Passman told us afterwards that he was joshing, that he wouldn't bet more than 35 cents on anything. But he swore, sans $5,000, that the President will be exonerated...The White House placed an order a few days ago for electronic parts suitable for tape recorders or other electronic devices. But the parts, unhappily, will arrive too late to correct the inaudibles and unintelligibles in the famous White House transcripts...

A secret White House memo shows that not all civil servants caved in to the pressure of President Nixon's aggressive campaign aides in 1972. When aide David Cahill tried to put the bite on Cost of Living official Dick Cheney for campaign funds, Cheney was so irritated that he complained to Nixon campaign headquarters. "Dick felt someone should be aware of this activity," states the memo.

Gas line breaks, causes fire

A broken gas line is blamed for a fire which did extensive damage to a car belonging to Freda Schaefer of Oran at 11:45 a.m. Thursday at the intersection of Main Street and East Malone Avenue.

Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer said the gas line apparently broke as the car approached the intersection.

The fire was quickly extinguished but not until it had done considerable damage to the engine, Linnemeyer said.

Sikeston Women's Club installs new officers

The Women's Club of Sikeston met Tuesday in the El Capri Coffee Shop for its spring luncheon and installation of officers.

There were 35 members present and with two guests, Mrs. Mable Ingram Winter of Pampa, Tex., and Miss Kelly Hill of Sikeston.

Following an invocation by Mrs. Otto L. Dvorak and the luncheon, Miss Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hill, gave an account of the Sophomore Pilgrimage to Jefferson City on April 8 and 9 on which she was the representative of the Women's Club.

Following stops at Meramec State Park, Boys Town of Missouri at St. James and Bagnell Dam, the tour group spent the night at the Governor Hotel in Jefferson City, then toured the State Capitol and the governor's mansion the next day before returning home late that evening.

Miss Hill stated that she could not think of any youth who would not profit from the experience of going on the Sophomore Pilgrimage, and she expressed appreciation to the club for sending her as its representative.

After a brief business meeting, Mrs. Thatcher Scism presented Mrs. Fred Koch, the retiring president, a gift from the club.

Mrs. M. E.Montgomery conducted the installation ceremony for Mrs. W. W. Goodpasture, president; Mrs. W. G. Funk, first vice president; Mrs. William Z. Baker, second vice president; Mrs. Otto Hahs, recording secretary; and Mrs. Fred Geske, treasurer.

Mrs. Koch presented Mrs. Goodpasture the gavel and her president's pin and dismissed the meeting with the club collect.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. J. S. Wallace, Mrs. R. D. Mow, Mrs. Sayers Tanner, Mrs. H. C. Young and Mrs. Fred Hetlage.

Ann Landers

Reply given for 'drink-shovers'

Dear Ann Landers: I read someplace that you don't drink and never have. I don't care much for liquor, but I always find myself having one or two because people keep insisting. Some hosts won't take no for an answer.

What do you say when people pressure you to "be sociable" or "have just one"? Sign me-- A Drinking Dry Who'd Rather Not

Dear D.D.: I have a very simple answer for people who keep trying to shove a drink in my hand. I say, "If I don't mind YOUR drinking, you shouldn't mind my NOT DRINKING, Please don't ask me again." (P. S. After that little speech I have very little trouble.)

Dear Ann Landers: I have read many letters in your column from women who say they are always fighting off men. It seems these poor dears are forever getting propositioned by the butcher, the druggist, the doctor, bus driver, lawyer, plumber, and meter reader. I know two women like that.

Why don't the simpletons realize what they are telling about themselves? Don't they know that when a man sees a sign in the window that says "welcome," it's an even bet that he will accept the invitation? Women who get all those propositions are hanging out little signs, whether they know it or not. Usually it's in their eyes. Wizem up, Ann.-- Hip In Harrisburg

Dear Hip: Generally speaking, you are right. But some men don't look for invitations. They issue 'em.

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with your advice to the 55-year- old man who is stuck in a marriage that has lost its meaning. It was astute of you to guess that his wife may be as unhappy as he and would probably be glad to end it.

Our marriage is stone- cold dead. We speak only to argue. My husband thinks he'd be happier elsewhere, and I'd be glad to let him go-- on fair terms.

But I've given 25 years of my life to this man. I've raised his children, entertained his bosses and scrimped so he could have good clothes because he had to "meet the public." Now my "generous" husband wants to split everything 50- 50. This means I end up with $40,000. I'm 52, with no business experience. He has a good job, medical insurance and a fantastic pension.

I'm not arguing. The marriage is a fraud. But when you give advice to middle- aged men, please tell them to be fair.-- Wilted Rose

Dear Rose: If your husband has a shred of decency, he will provide for you as best he can. A competent lawyer (yours) will help him decide what is honorable and financially feasible and see that he does it. In the meantime, you can't get blood out of a turnip, lady. But please remember, while you are doing your arithmetic, that freedom from a loveless marriage can be worth plenty-- and I am not talking about money.

Confidential to Where Will It End?: Our forefathers did without sugar until the 13th century, without coal fires until the 14th century, without tea or soap until the 17th century, gas or matches or electricity until the 19th century, canned or frozen foods until the 20th century. I think we'll make it.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You-- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35c in coin and a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

93 pounds lost; now jaws stuck

LONDON (AP) — Housewife Shirley Turner, who has lost 93 pounds since a surgeon clamped her jaws together with metal plates in November, found she couldn't move her jaws when the plates were removed for cleaning.

"My ears popped and I nearly passed out. It was a terrible sensation," said the former 247-pounder.

She is on a liquid diet of 600 calories a day. She hoped to slim to 133 pounds by June, when the plates are to be removed permanently, but her doctors now think it will take at least two months before she can eat properly. She still weighs 154 pounds. "... and there is also the danger I may lose some of my teeth," she said.

But a spokesman at Nottingham General Hospital, where the plates were installed, said, "We are satisfied with her progress. We are quite sure that her jaws will go back to normal when she has the plates removed permanently.

Heroes reflect child's values

By SHAREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economist

BENTON — Of all persons whom you know, or have heard of, or have read about, or have seen, whom would you most want to be like? This question can give you an insight into your children's heroes or even your own values.

Can you remember who your heroes were when you were a child or teen? Was it a historical figure, politician, movie star, teacher? Most likely, you had at least one and he changed from age to age.

Were you influenced by your hero's ideas and accomplishments. How about your children?

One important aspect of a child's development (and too often assumed to be automatic) is forming a set of standards, ideals or values which can guide his future. They don't learn these all at once, but gain this understanding by interacting with people important to them.

Parents are of first importance, but heroes are also models and a source of values and aspirations. After about eight years, children begin admiring people outside the family: coach, teacher, club leader, athlete, TV star or even one of their own design, which is a composite of one's looks, another's talent, ect.

What place do these heroes have in a child's life? Ronald Pitzer, extension family life specialist at University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, believes they are as necessary as rituals, holidays and ideals. He quotes several authors who say "that a hero functions like a jack, raising our aspiration, pushing us to do better than we might without him;" or "without heroes, we're all plain people and don't know how far we can go ... It's their (heroes') function to be the best."

A child psychologist said boys and girls need heroes like vitamins to grow on.

All three of these really say heroes expand the sense of human capability, something we all need.

It's harder to find "intrinsic merit" in people today than in years past. There are lots of mass produced heroes who are sold to the public via mass media or public relations crews. But how can modern-day parents combat these anti-heroes?

Consider your values, ideals and characteristics you'd like your child to develop. Find out who your child's present heroes are and see if they represent the values you want for you child.

Practice what you preach; examine your own hero worship. Do we value fame and money, or honesty and spontaneity? Parents need to help youth find exciting heroes who also stand for self-growth and competence.

Until we sort our own feelings about who the heroic people are and why, we can't communicate them to our children. For example, we need to be able to tell them that even though virtue isn't always rewarded, or that a hero can be brutal, we still value virtue and not violence.

We show what qualities we admire by the way we talk, act and respond to others, or by our silence.

TAPPAN
FIRST IN ELECTRONIC COOKING

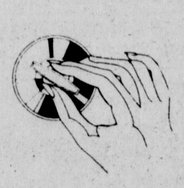

Enjoy all the many benefits of electronic cooking now . . . without remodeling your kitchen. New Tappan electronic oven fits on your kitchen countertop, plugs into standard outlets, can be moved to dining room, patio or den. Best of all, it's from Tappan -- the people who introduced electronic cooking for the home back in 1954.

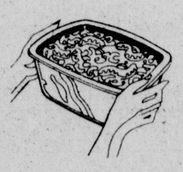

Electronic energy is a form of high frequency radio energy. When the energy comes into contact with food, instant heating takes place.

The electronic oven cooks with time, so there are no temperatures to remember. You just set the timer dial, then push the "start" button.

Because the metal surfaces in the oven reflect energy, they don't get hot. Cleaning is easier because foods don't burn in the oven.

Throw away your pots and pans. In the new electronic oven, you cook in glass, paper or ceramic utensils . . . the same ones you serve in.

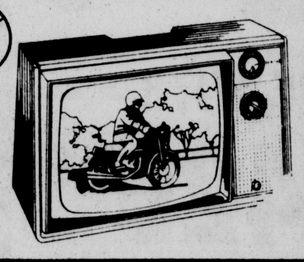

Let us demonstrate this miraculous new oven for you . . . then carry one home for just

Regional underway at VFW

Two proven champions a definite dark- horse possibility and the Sikeston Bulldogs all decended on V.F.W. Stadium this afternoon as the regional tournament got underway. The proven champions are Fox High School's Warriors and West Plains. And, the dark- horse candidate that has a real shot is the upset- minded Raider team from North County High School in Desloge.

Fox's Warriors used clutch play on defense and in the batter's box last year to claim the 1973 regional baseball title. The St. Louis area nine scored seven runs in the bottom of the seventh to edge Cape Central 7-6 and later used errors by West Plains to take the Zizzers on their way to the top rung in Missouri 2-A baseball. This year Fox has claimed 12 of 18 outings, facing top metropolitan competition, and the veteran team wants another big, shiny trophy for the Fox trophy case.

West Plains resembles to a lesser degree the great machine put together in recent years past by Lafayette High School in St. Louis County. Lafayette won the title three years in a row. Well, the Zizzers haven't done quite that well, owning a single second- place finish in 1968, but they have been in the semi- finals eight years in a row. And, that brother, is a record to be proud of.

North County got to the regional by a devious route. Branded by coach Pickle Steagall as "a team of the future," they put seven juniors on the field. All seven started last year when they were sophomores. Festus was supposed to be the top dog in the North County district, but DeSoto upset them. Then, North County promptly turned the tables on DeSoto, and the unseeded Raiders made the trip to Sikeston.

Pitching and defense should be the rule in Friday's twinbill. Joe Bill Arnett, who will not start for West Plains, has not allowed an earned run in 54 innings of work and has compiled a 9-0 record. Arnett, a righthander, is listed as one of the top prospects in the entire state and coach Ron Shemwell hopes to save the hard- firing senior for Saturday's title game. His backup man isn't bad, however, Rex, Coulter, who covers third when not hurling, had a record of 2-1, losing a three-hitter, and an e-r-a- of 0.84. Coulter is also the top average hitter for the 13-3 West Plains team, compiling a .414 batting average. Kenny Harris is second at .400 and Doug Thompson's .370 mark is third.

The Fox Warriors can't lean back on last year, but youthful coach James Wright most probably won't let them. Fox is weak in the hitting department, but they rely on big "Lumpy" Odum to pitch them through. Odum, a super- hard thrower, rarely has allowed more than three hits a game against the tough St. Louis area competition. But, he usually has to scramble for runs. the hitting attack is solid, if unspectacular, and the Warriors usually manage to come up with a run or two, and when Odum is on the hill, that's usually enough.

North County brings a less impressive record into the tournament, but they also bring a reputation as an underrated team. The Raiders, who paid the price of youth earlier this year by dropping four of their first five, later won eight in a row including the district championship and will send righthanded senior Jim Bullock to the mound against West Plains. Bullock and his fellow moundsman Dave Tiefenauer both possess 4-2 records. Tiefenauer also batted .400 as the third- best hitter on the North County team. Greg Ragsdale, a 6-foot-3, 220- pound All- State football player, is batting .458 for the best mark. Shortstop Kevin Warren is second at .438.

After a long, successful season the Bulldog players are familiar. Still leading the hitting parade is Sikeston's leadoff man Rick Eisenbach at .492. Jim Saulter is next at .407 and leads most power categories with five homers and 22 r-b-i's. Catcher John Leible has stolen 19 consecutive bases, while batting .388. Mitch Walker is also hitting .388 and Stokes is batting a point lower. Walker and Stokes each own 6-1 records. Rich Blankenship, who shut out Fox last Saturday, is at 5-1.

The statistics have been given, but they mean little. In baseball and especially against tough competition like that present, statistics and past records mean little. It must be done between the whitelines and the Sikeston Bulldogs are confident of at least a good showing. Some good baseball will be played and a good crowd should be on hand for the first game which began at 1 p.m. These four are among the top 16 teams in the state and represent the best in their respective districts. The baseball played will be good. All three games will be worth seeing. Here's hoping Sikeston wins two.

Race nears

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Five of American auto racing's big men are awaiting Saturday's second round of qualifications for the Indianapolis 500-mile race in an unusual position.

Those drivers—Mario Andretti, Al Unser, Gordon Johncock, Johnny Rutherford and Roger McCluskey—are usually solidly in the field and well on their way to having cars set up for the race by this time.

And, under the new shortened qualifying setup for the Indy classic, they could end up on the outside looking in on race day, May 26.

The five represent 49 years of Speedway participation, four victories, four poles and five national driving titles.

Unser and Rutherford lost out in the opening session of qualifying last Saturday when they blew engines in the morning practice period and failed to get into line for the time trials before the 11 a.m. start.

Johncock, the defending Indianapolis champion, and Andretti were left waiting in line when rain ended the first session nearly two hours early, and defending national champion McCluskey wasn't anywhere near ready to put his new Riley-Offenhauser in the field.

In the past, the top drivers who experienced trouble the first day could come back Sunday and slip into the field. And, when that failed on occasion, they could qualify during one of the two sessions the next week.

But now, after a time cutback because of the energy crisis, there are only seven hours of time left. A blown engine or other serious mechanical problems could knock one of the five veterans out of the 33-car field.

Unser, who won here in 1970 and 1971, said, "There's nothing you can do about it but just hope it doesn't happen. If you have any problems the morning of qualifications, you are just out of luck."

Johncock and Andretti set the pace in Thursday's surprisingly light practice session. In all, 26 drivers made practice runs, but most of them were running in the 170s.

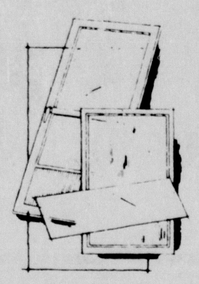

Johncock could do no better than 184.049 miles an hour, leaving him more than seven miles off A.J. Foyt's 191.632 m.p.h, that currently sits on the pole.

Cards lose lead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Baseball's revised scoring rules denied the New York Mets' Harry Parker credit for a save during strong relief pitching Thursday.

But the lanky right-hander, workhorse of the thin Mets staff, couldn't have cared less after preserving a 6-4 victory in the National League over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"That doesn't matter," maintained Parker, whose one-hit stint over the final 2 2-3 innings was statistically unrecorded in protecting the decision for left-hander George Stone, 1-3.

"We've got to start winning," he emphasized in listing higher priorities. "We've got to get to the .500 mark and then take it from there.

"I don't feel any special burden on this staff," Parker added. "When I do get the call, though, I like to be able to do my part."

Parker, once a Cardinals farmhand, was nominated Thursday after the Mets sent ailing reliever Tug McGraw to New York for examination of a rib cage muscle pull.

And the persistent injury to the 29-year-old McGraw disturbed Manager Yogi Berra, whose team has a 15-19 record.

"We're hitting the heck out of the ball, but we need more pitching," Berra reflected. "We've got 26 days without a day off, and if we have to put Tug on the disabled list we'll have to find another hurler."

The pitching of the 6-foot-3 Stone was sufficient until Mike Tyson slashed a one-out double with the Mets ahead 6-3 in the seventh.

That brought on Parker, who surrendered a pinch single to Jim Hickman setting up the final Cards run and afterward slammed the door.

"I got tired, but I don't think it was because of the four innings I worked Monday night," observed Parker, who survived two ninth-inning walks.

"I think it was the heat," he suggested. "We just came from Chicago, where it was cold like the middle of winter."

Don Hahn's second home run of the season, a two-run blast, and utility infielder Teddy Martinez' two-run double sparked the early Mets attack.

"He just happened to get it into my zone," the soft-spoken Hahn said of his clout off Cards starter John Curtis, 2-4, who surrendered all New York's runs and squandered a 2-0 lead.

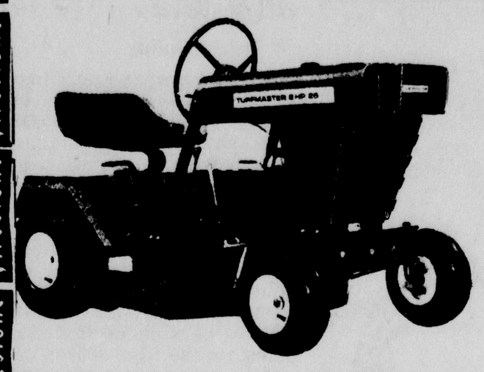

The failure of Curtis, who began with a 4.50 earned run average and walked four in four innings, irritated Cardinals Manager Red Schoendienst.

"He just hasn't been able to find the plate all year," Schoendienst complained. "He's got good stuff. All he has to do is throw it over the plate."

Must we see 'The Exorcist'?

By David Poling (NEA)

North America is getting a staggering dose of Satanism from the motion picture industry. People are waiting in lines — stretching around the corners — to see "The Exorcist." Every national magazine has given the film big play, usually with a cover story and a vivid account of the sickening reactions suffered by each audience.

We have heard just enough to know that this is one film we can live without. Apparently there are many others who share this feeling, in spite of the promotions that keep the film smack in the public eye. Unfortunately, the religious community has been caught in an ethical cross-fire — some pastors feel they must see the film in order to help the victims. Others argue that the final exorcism by a Catholic priest (in the film) scores important points for Christianity.

Alas, what we are facing is the dollar profit pursued by the movie promoters and producers. Here they have found a picture that can have every foul theme — from pornography to idolatry — drape it in a church setting, cast a pious priest, and it gets approval like Walt Disney.

Lucille Ball is right. The hard-buck boys in the film industry have not taken entertainment down the drain — they have yanked us into the sewer. It is for thinking people to decide, like always, if they want to splash around in such a pond.

There have always been those who will follow the crowd to destruction. And we have visited with many who honestly wish they could take back the moment they went to see "The Exorcist." Many have sought professional help from psychiatrists and clergymen. Others can't sleep, are on prescribed drugs, have to be in constant companionship with family, light on at night — the whole baby-sitting routine. These people are in panic. They are terrified, all for some 20th-century entertainment.

Out in California, Kathryn Kuhlman, famous for her ministry of faith healing, has announced some special March meetings for people caught up in the trauma of demon possession. In preparing for the public meetings at the Anaheim Convention Center, Miss Kuhlman said:

"I'm not approving the book or the picture. But I feel in this instance Satan went a little too far. Therefore, let Christians now take it up and use it for the glory of God."

The Satanic theme and the power of evil is a recurring theme for the Bible and Christians. There have been times when society becomes hysterical and even Christians wobble under such emotions. Even White House spokesmen tried to sell the "evil influence" theory when Rosemary Woods erased some tapes.

There are specific ways that suffering people can gain help in such a time as this. The first is to remember that love does cast out evil and I Corinthians 13 is helping a lot of folk get through the night. The other assist comes from Martin Luther who reminds us that the Devil is God's devil and the ultimate conclusion for time, history and evil is in the hands of the Heavenly Father.

Scripture: Acts 21-22

BOLD WITNESS PROVOKES CONTROVERSEY

Wanted: A man, a man who will stand up for his beliefs.

This has been the need for the world for centuries. This is the main theme in today's lesson, which requires a Christian to display his faith openly.

When one seeks to be an honest witness to his faith, he gambles on the reactions of those about him. He might encounter controversy and confusion, and, in rare instances, even death.

Paul was a brave man, unafraid of what would happen to him. In reviewing his activities in today's Scripture readings one feels that Paul looked forward to his death in spreading Christianity.

A prophet predicted to Paul that a trip to Jerusalem would result in danger to him. A person with less confidence in his objectives would have turned back. But not Paul.

Paul's faith was so strong that he always felt that he was in direct communion with God.

It has been said that "The Christian makes his way to eternity from communion to communion. At each stage in the journey, Christ is waiting for him in order that he may renew his strength and take heart again."

Paul sought to be such a leader to the newly-developed church. He was so strong-willed that he could be the example many of the less-willed needed.

Six years ago Senator Frank Carlson wrote, "Never have public officials been so brazen and open in seeking the vote of the people through promises of things that are morally and spiritually wrong".

This was written long before Watergate and its related scandals. Paul would have understood, since he too encountered men more concerned with their own personal gains than with serving God.

The Kansas senator claimed three major forces were responsible for "the chaos, frustration, and anti-Christian era in which we live." The first is the fact that we live in an age of uncertainty.

Second, there is widespread devotion to the idea that nothing can be allowed to remain the same.

Third, man is taught not to accept anything until he has first put it under strong and critical examination.

Paul would have understood the views expressed by the senator. Paul knew the uncertainty that followed the days of Jesus on earth.

There were those persons who developed a feeling of hate toward Jesus. After the death of Jesus these persons took their hate out on Paul and his group.

Why would anyone have hated Jesus?

Jesus claimed that He had come from God. But there were many who refused to believe Him. And they didn't like the fact that Jesus pointed out their sin and hypocrisy for all to see.

God was looking for people such as Paul. The church today continues to search for men who can unite in a common faith to spread His message.

Witnessing is controversial. It is seen by the younger persons who have been called the "Jesus Freaks." It is seen by older persons who hold unto their traditional views while others seek changes.

Young folks witness in many ways. Some seek fresh approaches to share their views about Christ. They are motivated much as Paul was motivated. They, too, refuse to be dissuaded.

Yet even today we find that too strong a dedication to a cause can produce tension between the leaders and would-be followers.

Men today are moved by events, by "happenings." They still look for a hero. They still need a Martin Luther, a John Wesley, a Francis of Assisi.

To some, Paul was too liberal. Nevertheless, Paul's goal was the same as Christianity today --- to make the gospel related to our everyday lives.

Marjoe rates preaching 'very much akin to acting'

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- "Preaching is very much akin to acting. Billy Graham would make a marvelous actor. In fact, he is."

This was the somewhat cynical assessment of Marjoe Gortner, onetime kiddie evangelist turned actor. He was explaining why he had an easy time moving from behind the pulpit to before the camera.

"All my life I thought of being an actor," said Marjoe, 30. "My training for it was the best I could have had.

"After all, a preacher has to memorize and rehearse his lines. He has to deliver them before a live audience and keep them listening.

"I rehearsed more for my sermons than I do for an acting role.

"I spent four or five hours a day memorizing new sermons, and I tried them out early in the week, when the audiences were smaller. Then I tightened them up until I could do them to perfection on Sunday."

The youthful Marjoe became a minor celebrity with his soul-saving, attracting attention by performing marriages while still in short pants. When he was 7, Warner Bros. had visions of grooming him as a latter-day Shirley Temple. Marjoe's dreams of the acting life were shattered when his parents turned down the contract offer.

"I was the wage-earner in the family, and I was making more money as a preacher," he said.

Marjoe continued as an evangelist during his adult years, but his disillusion grew. "I never really believed what I was preaching," he admitted. After a taste of radicalism at California State University at San Jose, he decided to lace his sermons with antiwar talk, portraying Christ as a revolutionary. It didn't work.

"I was telling them something they didn't want to hear," he said.

He returned to fire and brimstone and believed he was on the brink of superstardom , with visions of his own television show and religious corporation.

"That can mean big money, because the income is nontaxable," he remarked.

"The company buys the preacher his house, his car and pays all his expenses. Billy Graham can say he pays himself a small salary, but look at all the other benefits he receives."

Graham ignores Marjoe's comments. "If Marjoe ever got converted to Jesus Christ, I think he would make a marvelous preacher," he said when told in Phoenix, Ariz., of the statements.

He finally decided he couldn't continue spouting words he didn't believe. His catharsis came in a documentary film, "Marjoe." which showed him in action on the sawdust trail and in repose, contemplating his tumultuous boyhood and his search for identity.

"Marjoe" won an Oscar as best documentary feature of 1972 and started his acting career. His first role was as the murderer in the acclaimed television film "The Marcus-Nelson Murders" which served as a pilot for Telly Savalas's series "Kojak."

The POWER of FAITH

THE BIBLE

135. David Slays Goliath

Jesse sent his son David to take food to the other sons and to bring news of the battle between the Philistines and the army of Israel. When David came into the camp, he was startled and outraged because no one would battle the Philistine giant Goliath. When he volunteered to battle Goliath, his brothers and King Saul laughed at the idea of a shepherd boy battling a giant.

Finally, David persuaded Saul to allow him to face Goliath. Saul even gave young David his own personal armor and weapons. However, David could hardly move in the armor, so he decided to stay in his shepherd's robe, and carry only his staff, his sling, and five smooth stones from the brook.

Goliath was outraged that the army of Israel would send a shepherd boy to confront him. He boasted that he would give David to the birds of prey, but David answered that the Lord would allow him to prevail over the giant who defied God. "And David put his hand in his bag, and took thence a stone, and slang it, and smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sunk into his forehead; and he fell upon his face to the earth." (I Samuel 17:49)

Inflation hasn't changed the price of ashes.

But it has changed the price of your home. For example, if you bought a $20,000 home in 1968—today it's worth about $27,000. Don't be left with a costly pile of ashes. See me about a State Farm Homeowners Policy that will cover your home for all it's worth and keep it that way with automatic Inflation Coverage.

What's the law?

The case of the eager husband

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

After only a few years of marriage, Karen had three children. A morning caller, a noon- day crawler and a midnight bawler. Consequently, she sued her husband for an annulment charging him with fraud, misrepresentation and deceit.

"He tricked and deceived me," complained Karen tearfully in court. "Before we got married, he told me he didn't want more than one or two children. Now, he says he didn't mean it; that he always wanted five or six kids, enough at least for a basketball team. Had I known that he was lying to me, I'd never had married him. I wanted to be a wife, not a coach."

"But I like kids," responded Karen's husband. "And I figured that after Karen had a couple, she'd go for them too and want more. After all, it's kids that make the world go around."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant tearful Karen an annulment because of the deception of her eager husband?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that an annulment may be had when a man lies about his desire to have children since having children is an integral part of marriage. But, concluded the judge, no annulment may be had when he misrepresents the number he wants since the greater the number, the more the purpose of the marriage has been fulfilled.

Lilbourn band director to retire after 42 years

LILBOURN — W. L. "Fessor" Giddens will retire his band director's baton after he conducts his 30th annual spring concert at Lilbourn High School Saturday night.

Giddens came to the Lilbourn school system in 1945 as band director.

In all, he has taught 42 years, including earlier stints at Parma, Canalou, Matthews, Morehouse and Brunswick.

Born Oct. 13, 1910 at New London, Giddens is the son of a Methodist minister. He graduated from Central Methodist College at Fayette in 1934 with majors in music and English.

Presently, he is executive secretary of the Southeast Missouri School Band Association and secretary of the Southeast Missouri Music Educators Association. He has, in the past, served as president of both organizations.

He has been a member of the State Music Advisory Committee and a member of the executive board of Missouri Music Educators Association. He has served for two years as state president of Phi Beta Mu, national honorary bandmasters fraternity. He has acted as clinician and adjudicator of music festivals in Missouri and surrounding states.

Many of his former music students will be on hand Saturday night to honor him as he conducts the Lilbourn junior and senior high bands in concert. The program begins at 8 p.m. in the high school gymnasium.

Franklin found guilty of careless driving

BLOOMFIELD — Ronald Leroy Franklin of Puxico was found guilty of careless and imprudent driving following a trial in Magistrate Court before Judge Koss W. Blomeyer.

Franklin was involved in a one-car accident which occurred in March on Highway 51 just south of the Puxico city limits.

The case was continued from May 2 to allow the state time to subpoena additional witnesses after the attorney for the defense asked for a dismissal due to the fact that there were no witnesses to the accident in court on that day and that the ticket was issued by a patrolman at the hospital where Franklin had been taken for treatment, who had never been to the scene of the accident and had based his information on the statements of the two ambulance drivers.

Eight additional witnesses were called in Thursday's session which included the two ambulance drivers, several witnesses who had appeared at the scene following the accident, the defendant's wife, Margie Franklin, and Debbie Foster, all of Puxico.

Mrs. Foster testified that at the time of the accident she was traveling south on Highway 51, when Franklin approached her from the rear and attempted to pass on the right. She said he then lost control of his car, darted across the highway and overturned.

Mrs. Franklin, who was following directly behind her husband in her own car, testified that when Franklin attempted to pass Mrs. Foster, she pulled over into the left lane, forcing him to pass on the right to avoid an accident with the Foster car. She said when he went off onto the shoulder of the highway, he lost control and overturned.

Judge Blomeyer ruled Franklin guilty due to the fact he attempted to pass on the right, but due to conflicting testimony of the two women, fixed the minimimum fine of $15.

In another case, Jack Dewey Snider of Puxico was fined $10 and given a 60-day suspended jail sentence on a charge of possession of marijuana. He was placed on probation for six months under supervision.

Charles James Duncan of Essex was fined $10, and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of public intoxication.

Billy Gene Lusk of Dexter was fined $50 for possession of intoxicating beverage by a minor.

Ray Jensen pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing. Trial was set for May 23.

Fined for speeding were Larry David Hisaw of Dexter,$27; Johnny Dale Duke of Bloomfield, $10; James Elvis Brown of Dexter, $17; Leroy Marshall of Sikeston, $25 and Nilblads Zallaropoules of Sikeston, $16.

Paying fines for careless and imprudent driving were, Micheal Allen Caldwell of Dexter, $15; Lloyd Odum of Essex, $15; and Tony Jay McDonald of Dexter, $15.

Others paying fines for traffic violations were, Charles Ray Smith of St. Louis, no motorcycle permit, $10; Henry Harold Stevens of Bernie, expired operator's license, $10 and Ray Lee Tillman of Bell City, no operator's license, $10.

Larry Joe Hudgens of Bloomfield was fined $100 and ordered to surrender his operator's license after pleading guilty to driving while intoxicated.

Thieves hit Kellett Oil

Police today were investigating the theft of money from a cash register at the Kellett Oil Co. service station and the safe at the nearby Sikeston Bus Agency.

Police said $174 was taken from the bus station safe sometime between 9:30 p.m. Wednesday and 7:15 a.m. Thursday.

A sliding window was found off its track, police said, and no pry marks were found to indicate that the safe had been forced open.

The theft was discovered when the safe was opened by an employe Thursday morning.

On Wednesday, $196.35 was taken from the cash register of Kellett's service station sometime during the early morning hours while the station was open for business.

Robert Hodge Decker, 112A N. Kingshighway, told police Wednesday that a police monitor was missing from a room at Malone Theater, 107 W. Malone Ave., and had been taken between May 8 and Tuesday.

NBC SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES: "Two Mules for Sister Sara"-- A woman masquerading as a nun and an American mercenary join forces in fighting the French who are in control of 19th century Mexico. Shirley MacLaine and Clint Eastwood star. (Color; repeat)

Shirley MacLaine and Clint Eastwood star in "Two Mules for Sister Sara," an adventure drama to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" May 18 (8- 10 p.m. CDT) on the NBC Television Network.

In the story, Hogan (Eastwood), tired and grimy from days of travel from Texas across Northern Mexico, acts quickly to rescue a woman dressed in a nun's habit from a band of desperadoes.

After Hogan has driven away the outlaws, Sister Sara (Miss MacLaine) reveals that she is on a mission to raise money for the Mexican Juaristas, a group that is attempting to overthrow the French who hold the country in a iron grip.

Hogan tells Sister Sara that he is an American mercenary with the Juaristas and is on his way to Chihuahua to take the French garrison in return for half the gold in the French treasury.

The two decide to join forces in capturing the garrison. Later, once Hogan is asleep, Sara examines a red satin dress folded in her saddlebags and lights up a cigar, thus revealing that her appearance as a nun is merely a clever masquerade.

The 1971 Universal release was produced by Martin Rackin and Carroll Case and directed by Don Siegel. Albert Maltz wrote the screenplay from a story by Budd Boetticher.

WOLFMAN JACK
On 'The Midnight Special'
Early Saturdays, NBC Television Network
(In Color, following Friday Presentations of
'The Tonight Show 12:00 Midnight- 1:30 a.m.
Starring Johnny Carson")

Wolfman Jack says of himself: "What I am is a combination of the campy guys of the late 1950's, all rolled into one. But it's me!"

The best example of "personality radio," Wolfman Jack is heard nightly over 1,453 radio stations in this country in addition to hundreds of stations in 42 foreign countries.

Today, his gravel- throated voice is also heard on NBC- TV's "The Midnight Special," early Saturdays 12:00 midnight- 1:30 a.m. in color) as announcer, sidekick to the various hosts and, at times, as performer.

Wolfman is not an overnight sensation. He has been in broadcasting for almost 20 years.

Born in Brooklyn, Wolfman grew up listening to the New York Rhythm and Blues stations. Before he was 10, he knew he wanted a career in radio. As a young adult, he was determined to pursue it. He worked on stations in Newport News, Va., and Shreveport, La., before going to XERF in Mexico, across the border from Del Rio, Texas, in 1957. In 1965, Wolfman moved to XERB, below Tijuana, at Rosarita Beach. With the latter two stations, Wolfman was heard in this country (both were clear channel and high wattage) and became highly successful.

"I took the name Wolfman Jack," he explains, "because there were disk jockeys with strange names like Dr. Jive and the name Jack was popular from the saying 'What's doing', Jack?' " His real name is Bob Smith.

This year he appeared in his second motion picture, "American Graffiti." He had a minor role in the film, "The Seven Minutes."

Wolfman figures his audience to be in the 18- 35 age bracket, but adds: "Due to the 'Midnight Special,' it might be stretching to 45."

He spends about five hours a day recording his radio shows in a stereo studio in his Beverly Hills, Calif., home.

PETER MARSHALL

Host of "The Hollywood Squares" Mondays- Fridays, NBC Television Network

Peter Marshall, like many other show business celebrities and executives, started his career as an NBC Page in New York City.

With a driving desire for a career as an actor, he was soon performing in plays both on and off Broadway.

He eventually starred on Broadway with Julie Harris in "Sky-scraper." Other stage successes include the lead in the London company of "Bye Bye Birdie" and an eight-month engagement in two shows -- "High Button Shoes" and "Anything Goes" -- running simultaneously in Las Vegas.

Marshall and the late Tommy Noonan teamed in a comedy act that played all the leading nightclubs across the country and they were frequent guests on the Ed Sullivan show and other television variety programs.

Early in his television career, Marshall starred in a daily one-hour New York local presentation, "Two of the Most."

In addition to acting, Marshall has done some writing. He collaborated with Dick Gautier on the screen play, "Mary Jane," and he wrote the screen story of a yet-to-be-released film, "Wild in the Sky."

Marshall has cut several records and he has starred in two motion pictures -- "Ensign Pulver" and "The Cavern."

Born Pierre La Cock, in Huntington, W. Va., Marshall changed his name for the stage, adopting a name used first by his sister, actress Joanne Dru, who subsequently dropped it for her present name.

Marshall is an avid sports fan, an expert on boxing and a well- informed pro football follower. He also is a Los Angeles Dodgers baseball backer but now must split his loyalties with the Chicago Cubs since a son, Peter, is a top-rated Cub outfielder.

Secret evidence is leaked again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secret House Judiciary Committee impeachment evidence has been made public for the second time in as many days, suggesting a crack in the committee's tight security that before this week had not been breached.

The latest disclosure was published in The Washingotn Post. It was the committee's transcript of a key Watergate conversation — that of Sept. 15, 1972, between President Nixon, then White House Counsel John W. Dean III and former presidential Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman.

As a result of yet another leak, the Post also reported today on the contents of a tape the committee heard Wednesday. The tape was of a short conversation June 30, 1972, between Nixon, Haldeman and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

The Post did not reveal how it obtained the two transcripts, but the story on the June 30 meeting referred to comments by committee sources on why that transcript was included in the evidence.

Reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward quoted one source as saying " ... it shows part of a pattern to keep the lid on ... and the President is in on it early."

In an introductory paragraph to the side-by-side comparison of the Sept. 15 conversation, the Post said the Judiciary Committee's transcript was compiled by the committee's staff from a tape recording received by the special Watergate prosecutor's office.

Post reporter Lawrence Meyer said the committee's version and the White House version of the Sept. 15 conversations showed significant differences and that "lengthy passages were omitted in the White House version without any indication that material was excised.

In releasing the 1,254 pages of Nixon trancripts April 30, the White House said it was an edited version, from which national security information and conversations irrelevant to Watergate were deleted.

Meyer said that one of the differences between the two versions of the Sept. 15 conversation occurred when Nixon was speaking to Dean about U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey. He had been assigned to the civil suit by the Democrats against the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Meyer said the White House version of that conversation did not include, as did the committee version, Nixon saying "good" when Dean told him Richey had discussed the case off the bench.

The committee's version of that part of the conversation was reported to be:

Dean: Well, he's (Richey) been thoroughly candid in his dealing with people about the case. He's made several entrees, uh off the bench, to uh, one to Kleindienst, two to, uh, his old friend Roemer McPhee, to keep abreast of what his thinking is. He told Roemer he thought that Maury ought to file a libel action.

Nixon: Did he?

After laughter by Haldeman, the President was quoted again as saying: "Good."

Meyer said the Judiciary Committee version of the conversation also differs in numerous instances on specific words used by the participants, as well as, in at leastv3$pn)$nstance, the identity of the speaker.

If the material is not turned over, the panel is expected to issue a subpoena.

Layton Pickard is named Charleston Man of Year

CHARLESTON — Layton Pickard, cashier of First Secrurity State Bank, was honored Thursday night as the Lions Club Man of the Year at the eighth annual Man of the Year banquet in the National Guard Armory.

State Sen. William Cason of Clinton, president pro tem of the Missouri Senate, was the featured speaker.

Pickard, who was introduced by H. R. Hequembourg, vice president of the Lions Club, was cited as a man who has served his country, his state, his county and his fellowman. He and his family moved to Charleston 12 years ago from Kennett, where he began his banking career as vice president of Cotton Exchange Bank.

At present, Pickard is president of the Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council and is vitally interested in the health services of the area, serving as a member of the board of St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau and Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

He also serves as president and treasurer of the Training Center for Retarded Children in Charleston and is vice president of the board of the Community Sheltered Workshop in Sikeston.

In addition, Pickard is a member of the local Urban Renewal Board, the Mississippi County Historical Society and the Memphis, Tenn., School of Banking. He is now serving as chairman of the board of stewards of the United Methodist Church, where he is also a substitute Sunday School teacher.

He is a past president of the Chamber of Commerce and served as a member of the industrial committee.

Born in Benton, Pickard moved to Kennett when he was a teen-ager and graduated from high school there. He is also a graduate of University of Missouri and for four years was an agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He also served his state as commissioner of finance.

Cited for his work with Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, Pickard was honored with the Silver Beaver award, one of the highest Boy Scout awards, last year by the Okeechobee District board, having served on the executive board 26 years. He has been a fund- raiser for the Girl Scouts for many years and has served as chairman of the United Fund drive.

Pickard and his wife Mancy are parents of three children, Lee Ann Jones and Jane Pickard of Memphis, Tenn., and Joe Pickard of the home. The Pickards also have two grandchildren.

An engraved plaque was presented to Pickard by Hequembourg, and Mrs. Pickard received a flower arrangement.

Sen. Cason, who was first elected to the Senate in 1960, was introduced by State Rep. Fred DeField. In his address, Cason criticized the people who are "knocking our country" and stated that things are not really as bad as some people may think.

"Without question, we have the very best form or system of government in the world and we can and will handle our problems, be drawn closer together and, by doing so, be stronger and better for it," he said.

Cason spoke briefly on the Watergate case and remarked that it wasn't the system that went wrong but an unofficial organization outside the National Republican Committee that was responsible.

"Some have tried to say that if a few go wrong, all are wrong. This isn't true. The Republican Party, like the Democratic Party, does not believe in burglary and committing crimes," he said.

Cason also remarked briefly on the Sunshine Bill,

County Court approves collector's tax report

BENTON — The Scott County Court announced Thursday that it has approved the collector's 1973 annual report of $3,807,476 in tax collections.

The funds were distributed as follows:

General revenue fund, $346,056; special road and bridge district, $213,050; school districts, $2,450,637; health, $76,180; library, $45,681; and Johnson grass control, $15,352.

Presiding Judge Les Lankford said the 1973 total is the most that has ever been collected in taxes for one year in Scott County.

The court also announced that it will donate $200 to the Heritage House recreation center for senior citizens in Sikeston for the purchase of a new stove.

Man arrested at bank

Jake Jones, 20, of St. Louis was arrested for stealing by deceit at 8:15 a.m. today at Bank of Sikeston by Sgt. Jack Patterson and Detective Dan Hinton for allegedly trying to withdraw $250 from the bank account of David L. Bean.

Jones, also known as Jake Hunt, is being held in the city jail, but will be turned over to Scott County authorities, Patterson said.

Jones allegedly had withdrawn money from Bean's account on three previous occasions. On Dec. 31, 1973, he reportedly withdrew $200; on Jan. 31, 1974, $225; and on March 1, 1974, $200.

Lankford seeks judge seat

CHAFFEE — Les D. Lankford announces his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for second district associate judge of the Scott County Court in the Aug. 6 primary election.

Lankford has held the position of presiding judge of the County Court for four terms — a total of 16 years — and served as Scott County's representative in the 72nd General Assembly of the Missouri Legislature.

A life-long resident of Scott County, Lankford attended public school in Sikeston and Chaffee. He also attended University of Missouri in Columbia and the St. Louis School of Pharmacy. He is a registered pharmacist and has operated Lankford Drug Store since 1928.

Lankford is a member of the United Methodist Church of Chaffee, past exalted ruler of the Chaffee Elks Club and past president of both the Chaffee Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce.

Les Lankford

Lankford has served two terms as mayor of Chaffee and six terms as an alderman.

A life-long Democrat, he served as an honorary colonel on the staff of Gov. James T. Blair Jr. and was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles in 1960.

While serving as presiding judge, Lankford's name was added to the Leaders Honor Roll of the Univesity of Missouri Extension Division in recognition of his work in helping develop and carry out local extension programs. He was also named to the State Aid Road Committee in 1961.

Due to his experience in business, civic affairs, and state, county and city government, Lankford believes he is well acquainted with the problems that affect the citizens of Scott County, and if elected to the office of associate judge, Lankford says he will render fair, honest and courageous service as has been his custom in the past.

Madrid receives first star for community betterment

NEW MADRID — The first star in the Missouri Community Betterment Program was awarded Wednesday in community planning, and reaching the five-star status will be the goal of the chamber, President Bob Hedgepeth announced at the seventh annual Chamber of Commerce banquet Thursday.

Presently, there are just 26 cities out of approximately 330 statewide which are involved in the self- help Community Betterment Program that have attained five- star rating.

Other categories requiring certain minimum standards in municipal facilities are education, utilities, transportation and community services.

Hedgepeth emphasized the tremendous asset of five- star recognition to a community in attracting more industry, more people and economic growth. Ninety-one per cent of the new and expanding industries in the state within the past year have gone to Community Betterment towns.

Past president Clint Halstead was presented a plaque, as a citation of appreciation and in recognition of his dedicated leadership, by Mrs. Saundra Cope, vice president.

William Baird, newly appointed Community Betterment Committee chairman, accepted a plaque on behalf of the community betterment leaders and supporters. Cited were the Rev. E. E. Wolfe, former chairman, and Mrs. Dot Halstead, Mrs. Virginia Carlson, Mrs. Dorothy Edwards, Mrs. Virginia Recker, Robert Blom and Scott Harris.

Tribute was paid to the medical committee for its work in securing a physician. Community member J. Corbett Davis accepted the plaque from Mrs. Cope. Other members are chairman Sam L. Hunter Jr., Dr. Charles Baker, Bruce Allan, Clint Halstead, Dr. Sam Hedgepeth and Harold E. Hunter Jr.

Mrs. Dot Halstead, executive secretary of the chamber, was presented a bouquet of roses by F. M. Baird in recognition of her total involvement in all chamber projects.

In a review of 1973-74 chamber activities and achievements, Halstead said the chamber had focused its efforts toward city beautification, overcoming lack of medical facilities, economic growth and citizen involvement for the general improvement of the entire community.

In October 1973 at the Missouri Community Betterment Program conference in Jefferson City the New Madrid Community Betterment Committee received third place and a $400 cash award for its accomplishments.

Other achievements noted by Halstead included the placement of 15 redwood planter boxes, containing shrubs and flowers and matching trellises between buildings across open alleyways along Main Street; securing a medical doctor, Dr. T. Pattaropong; and leasing the medical building for one year, plus spearheading a drive to raise funds for additional medical equipment.

A $10,000 goal was surpassed by $8,000, which, Halstead said, proved true community involvement.

Other activities include recent purchase of a building by the chamber for establishment of a historical museum, continuing efforts to promote the community merchants and economic growth and work in the development and improvement of two city parks.

Featured speaker Jerry Shirley of Jefferson City, Southeast Missouri area community betterment specialist for the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, spoke on the topic, "My Town".

"People are the heart and soul of any community -- it cannot live, it cannot progress, it cannot maintain its place in society without the wholehearted cooperation of its people," Shirley said.

Continuing, he said, "Opportunity never knocks. It has to be found, and when once found, it must be expanded on, or failure is certain. People who get on in

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Have you ever heard of a wedding that suited both the bride and the mother?

* * *

PUZZLING PARANORMALITY

Even the experts are puzzled by the fact — turned up in a recent survey covering two decades — that the American death rate for such well- known and common killers as heart attacks have taken a definite drop. According to the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Walfare, the numbers of people dying from heart disease for the past ten years is some 15% less than the numbers who were killed by heart failures from ten to twenty years ago. The experts say that although they are happy to report their findings, they haven't yet decided precisely why several other of the best - known "killer" diseases also claim less victims.

Inevitably, however, everybody must die from something. Nevertheless, it is a bit surprising to find that the increase in death rates has occurred in accidents, murders, and suicides.

Since one would expect that a healthier people would also be a happier people, it will take someone wiser than us to explain why people who are killed less often by old- fashioned bugs should kill themselves more often. Wonder what Editor it was who first wrote, "The older I get — the less I know"?

THIS WAY TO HOP BOTTOM

They were a colorful and imaginative people, those pioneers who left us with such names as Hinkey Dinkey, Rough and Ready, Goose Pimple Junction, Hop Bottom and many others familiar to toponymy buffs (toponymy is the study of place names).

But times change and maps must, too.

According to Donald J. Orth, head of the Domestic Names Section of the U. S. Geological Survey, and also executive secretary for domestic names of the U. S. Board on Geographic Names, the present climate is more relaxed toward suggestive names (although a long- standing "cleaning up" process continues; for instance, a place in Oregon which once mean a house of ill repute now appears on the maps as Naughty Girl Meadow).

The names that give the most trouble these days, says Orth, are those which were once thought to be humorous or picturesque but are now considered offensive or derogatory because of our changing social climate. The largest group are those which contain racial or ethnic slurs.

In considering names submitted for decisions, the board follows a general rule that any name that is in common local use and is not considered offensive by the local resident is acceptable for map use.

'ALICE IN WASHINGTON'

WASHINGTON-- Alice was walking down Pennsylvania Avenue when the March Hare asked her, "How would you like to go to a White House press briefing?"

"What's a White House press briefing?" Alice asked.

"That is where they deny what they have already told you, which is the only reason it could be true," the March Hare said.

"It sounds like fun," Alice said.

The March Hare brought Alice into the press roon. A. chess pawn was standing at a podium.

"Who is that?" Alice asked.

"That is the press secretary. He talks in riddles. Listen."

"Why are transcripts better than tapes?" the press secretary asked.

"I don't know the answer to that one," Alice said to the March Hare. "Why are transcripts better than tapes?" she shouted to everyone's surprise.

The press secretary looked at her with cold blue eyes. "I refuse to comment on that."

Alice looked confused. "Why did he ask us a riddle if he can't give an answer to it?"

The March Hare said, "They don't tell him the answers; they just give him the riddles."

"What a stupid thing," Alice said. "Why is everyone writing in their notebooks?"

"They write down everything he says even though they don't believe him."

"Why don't they believe him?" Alice asked.

"Because he makes things up. He has to or there would be no reason to have a briefing."

The press secretary spoke again. "All the evidence is in and it proves beyond a reasonable doubt that the king is innocent of all crimes, ergo, ergo, ergo, et cetera."

"But what about the evidence the king refuses to turn over to the committee?" a dormouse asked.

"That is not evidence," the press secretary replied. "If there was further evidence to prove the king guilty, he would have gladly given it to the committee. The fact that he hasn't turned it over means regretfully there is none. It's as simple as that."

"It doesn't sound very simple to me," Alice said.

"Why can't we hear all the tapes," the Mock Turtle asked, "so we can decide for ourselves who is innocent and who si guilty?"

The press secretary replied, "If you heard the tapes it would only prove the innocent are guilty and the guilty are innocent and it would serve no purpose but to confuse you. Besides what you would hear is not what you have read and what you have read is not what you would hear, so it's better not to hear what cannot be read. Isn't that perfectly clear?"

"I feel I'm back at the Mad Hatter's tea party," Alice said.

"Now I will give you some important news today," the press secretary said. "This is on the record. 'Twas brillig and the slithy toves did gyre and gimble in the wabe: All mimsy were the borogoves, and the mome raths out grabe."

Everyone wrote it down.

"What did he say?" Alice asked.

"Nothing," the March Hare replied. "He's just stalling until he can go to lunch."

THE MAN NEXT DOOR

One of the tragedies of ar age in which fewer and fewe people know what it takes to produce food from the land is the blind resentment toward producers when the price of a beefsteak inches upwards a few cents. When Life magazine ran a feature on "Meat Counter Miseries," it perhaps unconsciously dramatized the gulf of misunderstanding between city and farm. It told of a family of suburban dwellers with a backyard swimming pool, two cars and other conveniences and luxuries of city life that apparently could not make ends meet -- because of high meat prices. Readers could easily overlook the less dramatic aspects of the article which told of the high costs of meat production from range to dinner table over which the meat industry has no control. Commenting on the Life piece, a meat industry official said: "... you've clearly shown that the price of meat is not due to so-called middlemen and farmer profiteering at the public's expense, but the price of putting the product from ranch and feedlot into and out of the retail counter. The people between the farmer and consumer are literally millions of other consumers who draw wages in the meat- food industry -- butchers, checkout counter girls, stockboys, truck drivers, tire salesmen, meat inspectors, secretaries, packinghouse workers -- in thousands of job descriptions. The honest, hard-working man next door is the middle- man, not some cabal of conspirators."

American agriculture is the most efficient on earth -- and so are the processing and distribution channels that bring the abundance of the farm to the family dinner table. This is one of the reasons why some people think there is a God-given right to cheap beefsteaks.

DON'T CLUTTER IT!

Every once in a while it is a good idea to go over some of the basic rules advertisers should follow in putting together an effective ad. Many times things can be overdone in a sincere effort to improve an ad's appearance. Edmund Arnold, one of the country's leading experts on newspaper advertising lay-outs, has preached about these seven deadly ad sins:

. Avoid diagnoal lines. It's easy to tilt a line, especially with offset, but diagnonal lines break easy reading.

. Avoid upside down or sideways ads. They attract attention but so does a black eye. The object is to sell through your message and make it as effortless for your reader as possible.

. Avoid boxes and circles except in the best of circumstances.

. Avoid cluttering up signatures with type too large, pictures of owners, sales staff and other junk. Keep the signatures as clean as the copy.

. Avoid illustrations that don't add to your message. Don't use art just to fill up space.

FEDERAL AID NEEDED FOR US

What's a measly five billion dollars for foreign aid when we owe five hundred billion? The treasury department can just print some more money and nobody will care. However, we do. Have you seen a budget in years which provided something for reducing the national debt? Every time we have borrowed money in the past we were expected to not only pay interest but to make a substantial monthly payment on the principal. No wonder our dollar has deteriorated in foreign exchange, and the market is getting ever nearer to collapse. Have you read where any congressman advocates spending some of the tax money on paying off our national debt?

TAX LIMITATION: ITS TIME HAS COME

Amidst crisis and political turmoil -- energy, currency, defense, inflation, Watergate, etc. -- there is reason for optimism. It comes in the form of Constitutional Tax Limitation. This is the single most important issue for the American people to bring into the election campaigns.

Constitutional Tax Limitation is a plan with incredible appeal. With one master stroke we force government to do all the things we have so long urged: reduce taxes, spend only within its income, establish priorities, achieve some modicum of efficiency, etc.

In California, Gov. Ronald Reagan's Task Force on Tax Reduction found that the percentage of the personal income of the people of the state taken by government at all levels -- federal, state and local -- in 1930 was 15 per cent; by 1950 this figure had risen to 32 per cent. In 1970, California was at the 43 per cent mark, and today that figure is in excess of 44 cents out of every dollar of personal income. If history repeats itself, California will cross the 50 per cent mark shortly after 1980. Clearly, something has to be done before the private sector is entirely consumed.

The relatively close loss at the polls in California's special election last November on their Tax Limitation Amendments has not deterred nor discouraged adherents of the Tax Limitation concept around the nation.

State Rep. David Finney, a Democrat, is carrying an adoption of the plan in the Texas Constitutional Convention. Republican State Sen. Tom Sharp introduced Tax Limitation in the Michigan State Legislature earlier this year.

Democrat State Rep. Louis Jenkins introduced Tax Limitation last fall in the Louisiana State Constitutional Convention and, through it, won dramatic constitutional controls on state taxes there. At the direction of New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thompson, Charles Douglas, the governor's chief legal counsel, is developing a Tax Limitation plan for New Hampshire.

Legislators in both the Senate and the House in Florida are working on a design appropriate for the Sunshine State. Maryland, Minnesota and several other states are at various stages in the development of Tax Limitation plans.

Congressman Jack Kemp (R.-N.Y.) has introduced a resolution in the U. S. House which calls for an annual reduction in federal taxation - spending over a 25- year period and precludes any tax increases or deficit finacing, except in times of declared national emergency. Not only would this amendment get a handle on the inexorable growth of federal government, but it would limit expenditures to revenues, thereby reducing the main reason for inflation -- expansion of the money supply beyond real economic growth.

Before the effort at the federal level has any chance for success, Tax Limitation must sweep the several states. This is no simple task, but the political party in Kansas that makes Tax Limitation an issue will gain much of the support that Gov. Docking has found with his "tax lid" stand in the past.

NOW THEY'RE ACTING SENSIBLY

The State Legislature last week acted sensibly on at least several measures.

Two years or so ago Missourians voted against lotteries for religious, educational and charitable groups, pari-mutuel betting at the horse racing tracts Last week the House killed a similar bill which would have allowed another vote on the proposal. It is too soon to have another test vote on the measure and the House acted as it should have.

It also defeated an attempted raid on the state road tax money for use for mass transit systems in the cities. All the money the state can get, especially in this era of gasoline shortages, is needed on state highways, county roads and city streets. Mass transit should and must look elsehwere for its funds.

The auto no-fault insurance bill was perfected in the House and could well pass and become law. It would force everyone who gets a vehicle license to also have liability insurance and is expected to reduce insurance costs 15% the first year. We need this.

The House also passed the campaign finance disclosure bill, one that is needed so the people will know to whom candidates are obligated. In view of what happened in 1972, few people will disagree with this one.

There was also approval of a bill to limit corporate farming. It is designed to protect the smaller and individual farmer. It is also a measure that we believe is needed.

As anticipated, our Representative Osbourn favored all of these sensible actions.

WILLY GETS HIS REWARD

The unfortunate Willy Brandt, West Germany's Socialist proponent of detente with Soviet Russia and Red Satellite East Germany, has learned the hard way the rewards and gratitude to be received from dealing with communists.

The so- called "democratic" socialists, from Kerensky to Brandt, always think that the communists are basically no different than other people and can be reasoned with and accommodated. We have had our own government officials in high places who turned out to have been hood- winked by communist leaders and communist agents, but we have had no resignations by top leaders as a result.

Brandt's scandal over his close friend and aide, Guenter Guillaume, caused him to give up the top government post in West Germany. He had been warned a couple of years ago that his aide might be a security risk but he chose to ignore the cautions.

In our own land, apologists for leftists are trying to rehabilitate Alger Hiss and claim that he was not a Red agent. At least Brandt is not trying to cover up his own subversive scandal, as so many have been covered up in our own society. His resignation goes far to prove Brandt's basic integrity-- which had been doubted by many who better understand communists. We can hope that West Germany's security has not been irreparably harmed before the communist spy was exposed and that other well- meaning "co- existers" here and abroad will be awakened by this latest spy scandal. Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Klassen's Political Pattycake

WASHINGTON-- At the instigation of the White House, Postmaster General Ted Klassen held off postal rate increases during the 1972 campaign in order to avoid stirring up voter discontent against President Nixon.

Instead, Klassen cut back on postal workers and caused a slowdown of the mails. This developed into a mail debacle after the election, with Christmas deliveries stacked up days behind schedule and postmasters all over the country dumping mail on each other.

Yet when Klassen was hauled before the Senate Post Office Committee in early 1973 to explain the postal foul- up, he blamed it all on his zeal to cut costs. He deliberately misled the Senate by failing to mention the deal he had made with the White House to slash the postal force rather than raise postage prices.

Klassen played political pattycake with the President's campaign aides, despite the fact that the Postal Service had been reorganized as an independent agency for the specific purpose of removing it from politics.

In the past, the Post Office had often operated as a political arm of the President. But under the reorganization, it was supposed to be totally free of White House control, much less political influence.

The story of how Klassen put politics ahead of postal service is told in a secret White House memo. He was summoned before John Ehrlichman, then the White House domestic chief. The secret meeting was also attended by White House efficiency expert Fred Malek, whose job was to gear government action to getting President Nixon re- elected.

Reporting on the meeting in an April 17, 1972, memo, Malek described a plan to "cut the summer employment program and put a freeze on hiring" at the Postal Service. This would save the money that otherwise would have necessitated a rate rise, it was agreed.

"It was the combined judgment of the assembled group," wrote Malek, that this "course of action was within the range of political acceptability."

He reported that "the freeze on hiring should result in a reduction by attrition of 5,000 to 6,000 employes per month for the next 5- 6 months." While he realized this "substantial number" would cut into services, he argued this "would seem preferable to a rate increase."

Malek suggested another meeting "in about three months to assess progress and to determine actions and their political consequences." Three months later, the hiring freeze had crippled the Postal Service, mail deliveries were bogging down and Klassen was making speeches about how he was cutting costs.

He didn't mention that the sole purpose of his economies was to prevent a postage stamp increase, which postal technicians wanted in January 1973. Under the law, this would have required an announcement a few weeks before the November 1972 election. Of course, the price of mailing a first class letter has now gone up from eight to 10 cents.

Footnote: Malek told us he "attended the (secret) meeting as an observer, just to learn what the postal plans were." A spokesman for Klassen told my associate Les Whitten that Klassen had actually blocked a White House move to add extra summer workers and had decided on the freeze well before the controversial meeting with Ehrlichman and Malek. The spokesman denied Klassen's actions were designed to further the Nixon campaign.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Richard Sprague, the crusading U.S. attorney who believes in going after the top man in a criminal conspiracy, successfully prosecuted former mine workers boss Tony Boyle for murder. Now Sprague has finished reading the White House transcripts. His case against Boyle, he told us, wasn't as strong as the evidence implicating President Nixon in the Watergate coverup...The White House is obstructing the Senate Watergate Committee's investigation of presidential pal Bebe Rebozo. Aides have produced written authority from the President, claiming executive privilege and directing them not to testify about crucial matters. The President's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, and brothers, Donald and Edward, have also delayed responding to Senate subpoenas. Apparently, the White House strategy is to hold back until the committee goes out of business next May 28...

Rep. Otto Passman, D- La., the old House curmudgeon, offered to bet anyone at Duke Ziebert's restaurant $5,000 the other night that the House won't impeach President Nixon. Passman told us afterwards that he was joshing, that he wouldn't bet more than 35 cents on anything. But he swore, sans $5,000, that the President will be exonerated...The White House placed an order a few days ago for electronic parts suitable for tape recorders or other electronic devices. But the parts, unhappily, will arrive too late to correct the inaudibles and unintelligibles in the famous White House transcripts...

A secret White House memo shows that not all civil servants caved in to the pressure of President Nixon's aggressive campaign aides in 1972. When aide David Cahill tried to put the bite on Cost of Living official Dick Cheney for campaign funds, Cheney was so irritated that he complained to Nixon campaign headquarters. "Dick felt someone should be aware of this activity," states the memo.

Front Running For Minorities:

Govt's Triple Offensive Ripping Open Industries, Fire, Police Depts. For Blacks, Women

WASHINGTON-- Soon enough you will be reading of women pulling out their hose. This won't be a peek into a boudoir. It will be a trip into some blazing building.

Or the report may have it that "she" pulled her gun in a shootout. These won't be esoteric accounts of some lone woman fire- fighter or cop. The federal government is determined to make it a way of life. It is part of a vast sweeping drive to rip open the rosters of fire and police departments, sanitation divisions, whole state and municipal governments for women on a man- to- man basis as well as for blacks, Puerto Ricans, Chicanos and Orientals. And it's not just talk.

This is the year of sex equality as well as for blacks and other minorities.

This is the year of triphammer civil court action, not only against cities and states, but against hundreds of corporations and unions. Already David Rose's Employment Section, Civil Rights Division (Justice Department), has moved against some 10 major cities and one state-- Maryland. And not only in the South where the federal government is concentrating on Jackson, Miss., to open all municipal divisions, especially the fire department, to women and blacks, but to major Northern communities.

These include Buffalo's fire department in behalf of blacks, Puerto Ricans and women; Philadelphia's police in behalf of women; Chicago's fire department in behalf of blacks and Spanish- surnamed persons, and against the Boston fire department for blacks. Also in other parts of the country: St. Louis, Dallas, Albuquerque, Los Angeles.

This is just the beginning. High Justice Department officials tell me they're about to file more antidiscrimination suits.

"We have been focusing on public employment," says David Rose, "and we will continue to do that. We will be filing suits regularly. We soon will be going to trial in Chicago. Then other cities to end all sorts of bans on race, sex and national origin in fire and police and other departments."

Actually this year of sex also will see the blacks and other minorities championed by a tough triple offensive. Already the Justice Department is hammering at the gates of 342 trucking corporations, hundreds of steel mills, scores of major firms such as Westinghouse which is fighting efforts to have its employment roster publicized and scores of unions.

And it all may prove costly-- in money-- to the unions as well as companies. Few have noticed that the United Steelworkers of America (AFL- CIO) agreed to pay $5 million of the $31 million it will cost labor and managment for back pay to minorities who were not promoted or who got clogged in the seniority list.

The union's international headquarters in Pittsburgh will pay labor's share. It can be expected that the Teamsters and the Machinists will be forced to follow this precedent when the final accord is settled between the sprawling trucking industry and the Justice Department. Next in line, according to reports, are sections of the building and construction field. This could cost the craft unions tens of millions of dollars in penalties. Also there is federal concentration on the oil industry, the banking and the broadcast media. And some, though not much, in "auto."

This reparation pay for those blacks, Puerto Ricans, Chicanos, Chinese and women who were not upgraded, or even not hired, may soon enough come to hundreds of millions of dollars. Further goals, some call it "quotas," will be set as in the consent decree between the Justice Department and the steel industry. For example: at least 25 per cent of the vacancies developing in supervisory jobs and openings in management training will have to be from either racial or sexual minority workers.

All these are actions paralleling Phil Davis's Office of Federal Contract Compliance. This deals with virtually all firms or persons doing business with the U. S. government. Billions of dollars worth of contracts are involved. The antidiscrimination pro- minority standards are the same: affirmative action, go out and find women, blacks, Chicanos et al., and hire them even if they haven't applied.

Racing alongside these offensives is the most intense campaign of all-- that of John Powell, Jr., new chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). He tells me that by June 30, the end of this fiscal year, his department will have received some 58,000 discrimination complaints. And that during the next "F.Y." there probably will be 80,000 more.

"I intend to develop more effective strategies," says Powell. "I am concerned that the process of handling a protest has taken 26 months. I intend to cut that time in half.

"We intend to move on a broad- gauge basis, analyze the types of problems in a particular industry or the number of complaints in it so we could move industry and countrywide."

These men mean what they say. They're not just talking about one black face above a white collar. Nor about one lady in a fire helmet or a woman with a cop's shield on her chest--- for the news and TV cameras.

They're talking of upgrading millions of minority workers everywhere.

Gas line breaks, causes fire

A broken gas line is blamed for a fire which did extensive damage to a car belonging to Freda Schaefer of Oran at 11:45 a.m. Thursday at the intersection of Main Street and East Malone Avenue.

Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer said the gas line apparently broke as the car approached the intersection.

The fire was quickly extinguished but not until it had done considerable damage to the engine, Linnemeyer said.

Judge Marshall Craig suspended a one- year jail sentence and gave Childress credit for 32 days spent in the Mississippi County jail prior to sentencing. His driver's license was also suspended for four months.

Phavernon Wilkins and Ray Jackson of Charleston each received suspended one-year jail sentences and were placed on two- year probations following appearances before Judge Craig on charges of tampering with a motor vehicle by removing an AM-FM radio stereo unit from the car of Raymond Smoot.

Miss Hill stated that she could not think of any youth who would not profit from the experience of going on the Sophomore Pilgrimage, and she expressed appreciation to the club for sending her as its representative.

After a brief business meeting, Mrs. Thatcher Scism presented Mrs. Fred Koch, the retiring president, a gift from the club.

Mrs. M. E.Montgomery conducted the installation ceremony for Mrs. W. W. Goodpasture, president; Mrs. W. G. Funk, first vice president; Mrs. William Z. Baker, second vice president; Mrs. Otto Hahs, recording secretary; and Mrs. Fred Geske, treasurer.

Ann Landers

Reply given for 'drink-shovers'

Dear Ann Landers: I read someplace that you don't drink and never have. I don't care much for liquor, but I always find myself having one or two because people keep insisting. Some hosts won't take no for an answer.

What do you say when people pressure you to "be sociable" or "have just one"? Sign me-- A Drinking Dry Who'd Rather Not

Dear D.D.: I have a very simple answer for people who keep trying to shove a drink in my hand. I say, "If I don't mind YOUR drinking, you shouldn't mind my NOT DRINKING, Please don't ask me again." (P. S. After that little speech I have very little trouble.)

Dear Ann Landers: I have read many letters in your column from women who say they are always fighting off men. It seems these poor dears are forever getting propositioned by the butcher, the druggist, the doctor, bus driver, lawyer, plumber, and meter reader. I know two women like that.

Why don't the simpletons realize what they are telling about themselves? Don't they know that when a man sees a sign in the window that says "welcome," it's an even bet that he will accept the invitation? Women who get all those propositions are hanging out little signs, whether they know it or not. Usually it's in their eyes. Wizem up, Ann.-- Hip In Harrisburg

Dear Hip: Generally speaking, you are right. But some men don't look for invitations. They issue 'em.

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with your advice to the 55-year- old man who is stuck in a marriage that has lost its meaning. It was astute of you to guess that his wife may be as unhappy as he and would probably be glad to end it.

Our marriage is stone- cold dead. We speak only to argue. My husband thinks he'd be happier elsewhere, and I'd be glad to let him go-- on fair terms.

But I've given 25 years of my life to this man. I've raised his children, entertained his bosses and scrimped so he could have good clothes because he had to "meet the public." Now my "generous" husband wants to split everything 50- 50. This means I end up with $40,000. I'm 52, with no business experience. He has a good job, medical insurance and a fantastic pension.

I'm not arguing. The marriage is a fraud. But when you give advice to middle- aged men, please tell them to be fair.-- Wilted Rose

Dear Rose: If your husband has a shred of decency, he will provide for you as best he can. A competent lawyer (yours) will help him decide what is honorable and financially feasible and see that he does it. In the meantime, you can't get blood out of a turnip, lady. But please remember, while you are doing your arithmetic, that freedom from a loveless marriage can be worth plenty-- and I am not talking about money.

93 pounds lost; now jaws stuck

LONDON (AP) — Housewife Shirley Turner, who has lost 93 pounds since a surgeon clamped her jaws together with metal plates in November, found she couldn't move her jaws when the plates were removed for cleaning.

"My ears popped and I nearly passed out. It was a terrible sensation," said the former 247-pounder.

She is on a liquid diet of 600 calories a day. She hoped to slim to 133 pounds by June, when the plates are to be removed permanently, but her doctors now think it will take at least two months before she can eat properly. She still weighs 154 pounds. "... and there is also the danger I may lose some of my teeth," she said.

But a spokesman at Nottingham General Hospital, where the plates were installed, said, "We are satisfied with her progress. We are quite sure that her jaws will go back to normal when she has the plates removed permanently.

Confidential to Where Will It End?: Our forefathers did without sugar until the 13th century, without coal fires until the 14th century, without tea or soap until the 17th century, gas or matches or electricity until the 19th century, canned or frozen foods until the 20th century. I think we'll make it.

Heroes reflect child's values

By SHAREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economist

BENTON — Of all persons whom you know, or have heard of, or have read about, or have seen, whom would you most want to be like? This question can give you an insight into your children's heroes or even your own values.

Can you remember who your heroes were when you were a child or teen? Was it a historical figure, politician, movie star, teacher? Most likely, you had at least one and he changed from age to age.

Were you influenced by your hero's ideas and accomplishments. How about your children?

One important aspect of a child's development (and too often assumed to be automatic) is forming a set of standards, ideals or values which can guide his future. They don't learn these all at once, but gain this understanding by interacting with people important to them.

Parents are of first importance, but heroes are also models and a source of values and aspirations. After about eight years, children begin admiring people outside the family: coach, teacher, club leader, athlete, TV star or even one of their own design, which is a composite of one's looks, another's talent, ect.

What place do these heroes have in a child's life? Ronald Pitzer, extension family life specialist at University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, believes they are as necessary as rituals, holidays and ideals. He quotes several authors who say "that a hero functions like a jack, raising our aspiration, pushing us to do better than we might without him;" or "without heroes, we're all plain people and don't know how far we can go ... It's their (heroes') function to be the best."

A child psychologist said boys and girls need heroes like vitamins to grow on.

All three of these really say heroes expand the sense of human capability, something we all need.

It's harder to find "intrinsic merit" in people today than in years past. There are lots of mass produced heroes who are sold to the public via mass media or public relations crews. But how can modern-day parents combat these anti-heroes?

Consider your values, ideals and characteristics you'd like your child to develop. Find out who your child's present heroes are and see if they represent the values you want for you child.

Practice what you preach; examine your own hero worship. Do we value fame and money, or honesty and spontaneity? Parents need to help youth find exciting heroes who also stand for self- growth and competence.

Until we sort our own feelings about who the heroic people are and why, we can't communicate them to our children. For example, we need to be able to tell them that even though virtue isn't always rewarded, or that a hero can be brutal, we still value virtue and not violence.

We show what qualities we admire by the way we talk, act and respond to others, or by our silence.

TAPPAN
FIRST IN ELECTRONIC COOKING

Enjoy all the many benefits of electronic cooking now . . . without remodeling your kitchen. New Tappan electronic oven fits on your kitchen countertop, plugs into standard outlets, can be moved to dining room, patio or den. Best of all, it's from Tappan -- the people who introduced electronic cooking for the home back in 1954.

Electronic energy is a form of high frequency radio energy. When the energy comes into contact with food, instant heating takes place.

The electronic oven cooks with time, so there are no temperatures to remember. You just set the timer dial, then push the "start" button.

Because the metal surfaces in the oven reflect energy, they don't get hot. Cleaning is easier because foods don't burn in the oven.

Throw away your pots and pans. In the new electronic oven, you cook in glass, paper or ceramic utensils . . . the same ones you serve in.

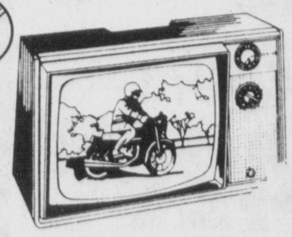

Let us demonstrate this miraculous new oven for you . . . then carry one home for just

Regional underway at VFW

Two proven champions a definite dark- horse possibility and the Sikeston Bulldogs all decended on V.F.W. Stadium this afternoon as the regional tournament got underway. The proven champions are Fox High School's Warriors and West Plains. And, the dark- horse candidate that has a real shot is the upset- minded Raider team from North County High School in Desloge.

Fox's Warriors used clutch play on defense and in the batter's box last year to claim the 1973 regional baseball title. The St. Louis area nine scored seven runs in the bottom of the seventh to edge Cape Central 7-6 and later used errors by West Plains to take the Zizzers on their way to the top rung in Missouri 2-A baseball. This year Fox has claimed 12 of 18 outings, facing top metropolitan competition, and the veteran team wants another big, shiny trophy for the Fox trophy case.

West Plains resembles to a lesser degree the great machine put together in recent years past by Lafayette High School in St. Louis County. Lafayette won the title three years in a row. Well, the Zizzers haven't done quite that well, owning a single second- place finish in 1968, but they have been in the semi- finals eight years in a row. And, that brother, is a record to be proud of.

North County got to the regional by a devious route. Branded by coach Pickle Steagall as "a team of the future," they put seven juniors on the field. All seven started last year when they were sophomores. Festus was supposed to be the top dog in the North County district, but DeSoto upset them. Then, North County promptly turned the tables on DeSoto, and the unseeded Raiders made the trip to Sikeston.

Pitching and defense should be the rule in Friday's twinbill. Joe Bill Arnett, who will not start for West Plains, has not allowed an earned run in 54 innings of work and has compiled a 9-0 record. Arnett, a righthander, is listed as one of the top prospects in the entire state and coach Ron Shemwell hopes to save the hard- firing senior for Saturday's title game. His backup man isn't bad, however, Rex, Coulter, who covers third when not hurling, had a record of 2-1, losing a three-hitter, and an e-r-a- of 0.84. Coulter is also the top average hitter for the 13-3 West Plains team, compiling a .414 batting average. Kenny Harris is second at .400 and Doug Thompson's .370 mark is third.

The Fox Warriors can't lean back on last year, but youthful coach James Wright most probably won't let them. Fox is weak in the hitting department, but they rely on big "Lumpy" Odum to pitch them through. Odum, a super- hard thrower, rarely has allowed more than three hits a game against the tough St. Louis area competition. But, he usually has to scramble for runs. the hitting attack is solid, if unspectacular, and the Warriors usually manage to come up with a run or two, and when Odum is on the hill, that's usually enough.

North County brings a less impressive record into the tournament, but they also bring a reputation as an underrated team. The Raiders, who paid the price of youth earlier this year by dropping four of their first five, later won eight in a row including the district championship and will send righthanded senior Jim Bullock to the mound against West Plains. Bullock and his fellow moundsman Dave Tiefenauer both possess 4-2 records. Tiefenauer also batted .400 as the third- best hitter on the North County team. Greg Ragsdale, a 6-foot-3, 220- pound All- State football player, is batting .458 for the best mark. Shortstop Kevin Warren is second at .438.

After a long, successful season the Bulldog players are familiar. Still leading the hitting parade is Sikeston's leadoff man Rick Eisenbach at .492. Jim Saulter is next at .407 and leads most power categories with five homers and 22 r-b-i's. Catcher John Leible has stolen 19 consecutive bases, while batting .388. Mitch Walker is also hitting .388 and Stokes is batting a point lower. Walker and Stokes each own 6-1 records. Rich Blankenship, who shut out Fox last Saturday, is at 5-1.

The statistics have been given, but they mean little. In baseball and especially against tough competition like that present, statistics and past records mean little. It must be done between the whitelines and the Sikeston Bulldogs are confident of at least a good showing. Some good baseball will be played and a good crowd should be on hand for the first game which began at 1 p.m. These four are among the top 16 teams in the state and represent the best in their respective districts. The baseball played will be good. All three games will be worth seeing. Here's hoping Sikeston wins two.

GIDEON — The board of education of Gideon No. 37 School District voted May 9 to discontinue the football program at Gideon High School due to lack of interest by students.

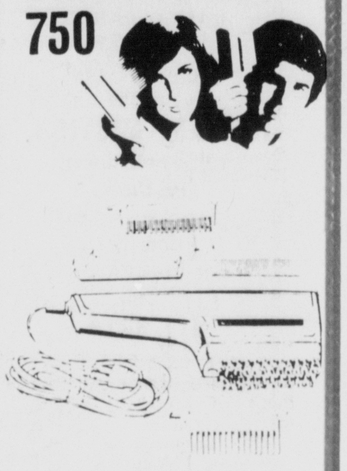

At a recent meeting of interested students, only eight boys indicated an interest in playing high school football, and seven of those were freshmen with no playing experience on the high school team.

Race nears

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Five of American auto racing's big men are awaiting Saturday's second round of qualifications for the Indianapolis 500-mile race in an unusual position.

Those drivers—Mario Andretti, Al Unser, Gordon Johncock, Johnny Rutherford and Roger McCluskey—are usually solidly in the field and well on their way to having cars set up for the race by this time.

And, under the new shortened qualifying setup for the Indy classic, they could end up on the outside looking in on race day, May 26.

The five represent 49 years of Speedway participation, four victories, four poles and five national driving titles.

Unser and Rutherford lost out in the opening session of qualifying last Saturday when they blew engines in the morning practice period and failed to get into line for the time trials before the 11 a.m. start.

Johncock, the defending Indianapolis champion, and Andretti were left waiting in line when rain ended the first session nearly two hours early, and defending national champion McCluskey wasn't anywhere near ready to put his new Riley-Offenhauser in the field.

In the past, the top drivers who experienced trouble the first day could come back Sunday and slip into the field. And, when that failed on occasion, they could qualify during one of the two sessions the next week.

But now, after a time cutback because of the energy crisis, there are only seven hours of time left. A blown engine or other serious mechanical problems could knock one of the five veterans out of the 33-car field.

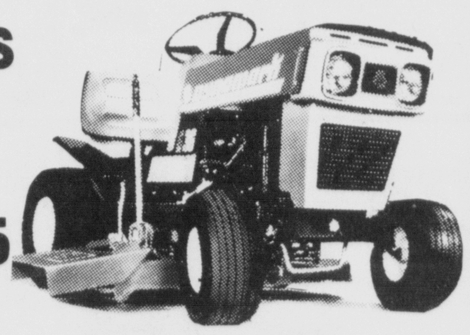

Unser, who won here in 1970 and 1971, said, "There's nothing you can do about it but just hope it doesn't happen. If you have any problems the morning of qualifications, you are just out of luck."

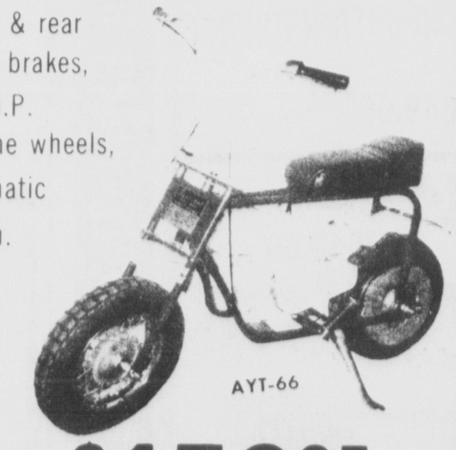

Johncock and Andretti set the pace in Thursday's surprisingly light practice session. In all, 26 drivers made practice runs, but most of them were running in the 170s.

Johncock could do no better than 184.049 miles an hour, leaving him more than seven miles off A.J. Foyt's 191.632 m.p.h, that currently sits on the pole.

Cards lose lead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Baseball's revised scoring rules denied the New York Mets' Harry Parker credit for a save during strong relief pitching Thursday.

But the lanky right-hander, workhorse of the thin Mets staff, couldn't have cared less after preserving a 6-4 victory in the National League over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"That doesn't matter," maintained Parker, whose one-hit stint over the final 2 2-3 innings was statistically unrecorded in protecting the decision for left-hander George Stone, 1-3.

"We've got to start winning," he emphasized in listing higher priorities. "We've got to get to the .500 mark and then take it from there.

"I don't feel any special burden on this staff," Parker added. "When I do get the call, though, I like to be able to do my part."

Parker, once a Cardinals farmhand, was nominated Thursday after the Mets sent ailing reliever Tug McGraw to New York for examination of a rib cage muscle pull.

And the persistent injury to the 29-year-old McGraw disturbed Manager Yogi Berra, whose team has a 15-19 record.

"We're hitting the heck out of the ball, but we need more pitching," Berra reflected. "We've got 26 days without a day off, and if we have to put Tug on the disabled list we'll have to find another hurler."

The pitching of the 6-foot-3 Stone was sufficient until Mike Tyson slashed a one-out double with the Mets ahead 6-3 in the seventh.

That brought on Parker, who surrendered a pinch single to Jim Hickman setting up the final Cards run and afterward slammed the door.

"I got tired, but I don't think it was because of the four innings I worked Monday night," observed Parker, who survived two ninth-inning walks.

"I think it was the heat," he suggested. "We just came from Chicago, where it was cold like the middle of winter."

Don Hahn's second home run of the season, a two-run blast, and utility infielder Teddy Martinez' two-run double sparked the early Mets attack.

"He just happened to get it into my zone," the soft-spoken Hahn said of his clout off Cards starter John Curtis, 2-4, who surrendered all New York's runs and squandered a 2-0 lead.

The failure of Curtis, who began with a 4.50 earned run average and walked four in four innings, irritated Cardinals Manager Red Schoendienst.

"He just hasn't been able to find the plate all year," Schoendienst complained. "He's got good stuff. All he has to do is throw it over the plate."

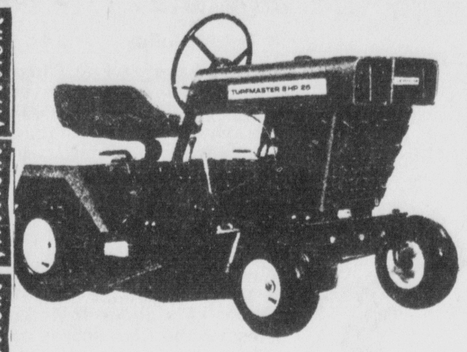

TENNIS

MUNICH — Romania's Ilie Nastase downed Patrice Dominiguez of France, 6-4, 6-4 to become one of eight players to advance to the men's quarter- final round in the 59th International Bavarian Tennis Championships.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Tom Okker upheld his second seeding with a 6-4, 6-7, 6-0 victory over Cliff Rickey to reach the quarter- finals of the $150,000 Alan King Tennis Tournament.

Must we see 'The Exorcist'?

By David Poling (NEA)

North America is getting a staggering dose of Satanism from the motion picture industry. People are waiting in lines — stretching around the corners — to see "The Exorcist." Every national magazine has given the film big play, usually with a cover story and a vivid account of the sickening reactions suffered by each audience.

We have heard just enough to know that this is one film we can live without. Apparently there are many others who share this feeling, in spite of the promotions that keep the film smack in the public eye. Unfortunately, the religious community has been caught in an ethical cross-fire — some pastors feel they must see the film in order to help the victims. Others argue that the final exorcism by a Catholic priest (in the film) scores important points for Christianity.

Alas, what we are facing is the dollar profit pursued by the movie promoters and producers. Here they have found a picture that can have every foul theme — from pornography to idolatry — drape it in a church setting, cast a pious priest, and it gets approval like Walt Disney.

Lucille Ball is right. The hard-buck boys in the film industry have not taken entertainment down the drain — they have yanked us into the sewer. It is for thinking people to decide, like always, if they want to splash around in such a pond.

There have always been those who will follow the crowd to destruction. And we have visited with many who honestly wish they could take back the moment they went to see "The Exorcist." Many have sought professional help from psychiatrists and clergymen. Others can't sleep, are on prescribed drugs, have to be in constant companionship with family, light on at night — the whole baby-sitting routine. These people are in panic. They are terrified, all for some 20th-century entertainment.

Out in California, Kathryn Kuhlman, famous for her ministry of faith healing, has announced some special March meetings for people caught up in the trauma of demon possession. In preparing for the public meetings at the Anaheim Convention Center, Miss Kuhlman said:

"I'm not approving the book or the picture. But I feel in this instance Satan went a little too far. Therefore, let Christians now take it up and use it for the glory of God."

The Satanic theme and the power of evil is a recurring theme for the Bible and Christians. There have been times when society becomes hysterical and even Christians wobble under such emotions. Even White House spokesmen tried to sell the "evil influence" theory when Rosemary Woods erased some tapes.

There are specific ways that suffering people can gain help in such a time as this. The first is to remember that love does cast out evil and I Corinthians 13 is helping a lot of folk get through the night. The other assist comes from Martin Luther who reminds us that the Devil is God's devil and the ultimate conclusion for time, history and evil is in the hands of the Heavenly Father.

Scripture: Acts 21-22

BOLD WITNESS PROVOKES CONTROVERSEY

Wanted: A man, a man who will stand up for his beliefs.

This has been the need for the world for centuries. This is the main theme in today's lesson, which requires a Christian to display his faith openly.

When one seeks to be an honest witness to his faith, he gambles on the reactions of those about him. He might encounter controversy and confusion, and, in rare instances, even death.

Paul was a brave man, unafraid of what would happen to him. In reviewing his activities in today's Scripture readings one feels that Paul looked forward to his death in spreading Christianity.

A prophet predicted to Paul that a trip to Jerusalem would result in danger to him. A person with less confidence in his objectives would have turned back. But not Paul.

Paul's faith was so strong that he always felt that he was in direct communion with God.

It has been said that "The Christian makes his way to eternity from communion to communion. At each stage in the journey, Christ is waiting for him in order that he may renew his strength and take heart again."

Paul sought to be such a leader to the newly-developed church. He was so strong-willed that he could be the example many of the less-willed needed.

Six years ago Senator Frank Carlson wrote, "Never have public officials been so brazen and open in seeking the vote of the people through promises of things that are morally and spiritually wrong".

This was written long before Watergate and its related scandals. Paul would have understood, since he too encountered men more concerned with their own personal gains than with serving God.

The Kansas senator claimed three major forces were responsible for "the chaos, frustration, and anti-Christian era in which we live." The first is the fact that we live in an age of uncertainty.

Second, there is widespread devotion to the idea that nothing can be allowed to remain the same.

Third, man is taught not to accept anything until he has first put it under strong and critical examination.

Paul would have understood the views expressed by the senator. Paul knew the uncertainty that followed the days of Jesus on earth.

There were those persons who developed a feeling of hate toward Jesus. After the death of Jesus these persons took their hate out on Paul and his group.

Why would anyone have hated Jesus?

Jesus claimed that He had come from God. But there were many who refused to believe Him. And they didn't like the fact that Jesus pointed out their sin and hypocrisy for all to see.

God was looking for people such as Paul. The church today continues to search for men who can unite in a common faith to spread His message.

Witnessing is controversial. It is seen by the younger persons who have been called the "Jesus Freaks." It is seen by older persons who hold unto their traditional views while others seek changes.

Young folks witness in many ways. Some seek fresh approaches to share their views about Christ. They are motivated much as Paul was motivated. They, too, refuse to be dissuaded.

Yet even today we find that too strong a dedication to a cause can produce tension between the leaders and would-be followers.

Men today are moved by events, by "happenings." They still look for a hero. They still need a Martin Luther, a John Wesley, a Francis of Assisi.

To some, Paul was too liberal. Nevertheless, Paul's goal was the same as Christianity today --- to make the gospel related to our everyday lives.

Marjoe rates preaching 'very much akin to acting'

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- "Preaching is very much akin to acting. Billy Graham would make a marvelous actor. In fact, he is."

This was the somewhat cynical assessment of Marjoe Gortner, onetime kiddie evangelist turned actor. He was explaining why he had an easy time moving from behind the pulpit to before the camera.

"All my life I thought of being an actor," said Marjoe, 30. "My training for it was the best I could have had.

"After all, a preacher has to memorize and rehearse his lines. He has to deliver them before a live audience and keep them listening.

"I rehearsed more for my sermons than I do for an acting role.

"I spent four or five hours a day memorizing new sermons, and I tried them out early in the week, when the audiences were smaller. Then I tightened them up until I could do them to perfection on Sunday."

The youthful Marjoe became a minor celebrity with his soul-saving, attracting attention by performing marriages while still in short pants. When he was 7, Warner Bros. had visions of grooming him as a latter-day Shirley Temple. Marjoe's dreams of the acting life were shattered when his parents turned down the contract offer.

"I was the wage-earner in the family, and I was making more money as a preacher," he said.

Marjoe continued as an evangelist during his adult years, but his disillusion grew. "I never really believed what I was preaching," he admitted. After a taste of radicalism at California State University at San Jose, he decided to lace his sermons with antiwar talk, portraying Christ as a revolutionary. It didn't work.

"I was telling them something they didn't want to hear," he said.

He returned to fire and brimstone and believed he was on the brink of superstardom , with visions of his own television show and religious corporation.

"That can mean big money, because the income is nontaxable," he remarked.

"The company buys the preacher his house, his car and pays all his expenses. Billy Graham can say he pays himself a small salary, but look at all the other benefits he receives."

Graham ignores Marjoe's comments. "If Marjoe ever got converted to Jesus Christ, I think he would make a marvelous preacher," he said when told in Phoenix, Ariz., of the statements.

He finally decided he couldn't continue spouting words he didn't believe. His catharsis came in a documentary film, "Marjoe," which showed him in action on the sawdust trail and in repose, contemplating his tumultuous boyhood and his search for identity.

"Marjoe" won an Oscar as best documentary feature of 1972 and started his acting career. His first role was as the murderer in the acclaimed television film "The Marcus-Nelson Murders" which served as a pilot for Telly Savalas's series "Kojak."

135. David Slays Goliath

Jesse sent his son David to take food to the other sons and to bring news of the battle between the Philistines and the army of Israel. When David came into the camp, he was startled and outraged because no one would battle the Philistine giant Goliath. When he volunteered to battle Goliath, his brothers and King Saul laughed at the idea of a shepherd boy battling a giant.

Finally, David persuaded Saul to allow him to face Goliath. Saul even gave young David his own personal armor and weapons. However, David could hardly move in the armor, so he decided to stay in his shepherd's robe, and carry only his staff, his sling, and five smooth stones from the brook.

Goliath was outraged that the army of Israel would send a shepherd boy to confront him. He boasted that he would give David to the birds of prey, but David answered that the Lord would allow him to prevail over the giant who defied God. "And David put his hand in his bag, and took thence a stone, and slang it, and smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sunk into his forehead; and he fell upon his face to the earth." (I Samuel 17:49)

Inflation hasn't changed the price of ashes.

But it has changed the price of your home. For example, if you bought a $20,000 home in 1968—today it's worth about $27,000. Don't be left with a costly pile of ashes. See me about a State Farm Homeowners Policy that will cover your home for all it's worth ... and keep it that way with automatic Inflation Coverage.

What's the law?

The case of the eager husband

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

After only a few years of marriage, Karen had three children. A morning caller, a noon- day crawler and a midnight bawler. Consequently, she sued her husband for an annulment charging him with fraud, misrepresentation and deceit.

"He tricked and deceived me," complained Karen tearfully in court. "Before we got married, he told me he didn't want more than one or two children. Now, he says he didn't mean it; that he always wanted five or six kids, enough at least for a basketball team. Had I known that he was lying to me, I'd never had married him. I wanted to be a wife, not a coach."

"But I like kids," responded Karen's husband. "And I figured that after Karen had a couple, she'd go for them too and want more. After all, it's kids that make the world go around."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant tearful Karen an annulment because of the deception of her eager husband?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that an annulment may be had when a man lies about his desire to have children since having children is an integral part of marriage. But, concluded the judge, no annulment may be had when he misrepresents the number he wants since the greater the number, the more the purpose of the marriage has been fulfilled.

Lilbourn band director to retire after 42 years

LILBOURN — W. L. "Fessor" Giddens will retire his band director's baton after he conducts his 30th annual spring concert at Lilbourn High School Saturday night.

Giddens came to the Lilbourn school system in 1945 as band director.

Presently, he is executive secretary of the Southeast Missouri School Band Association and secretary of the Southeast Missouri Music Educators Association. He has, in the past, served as president of both organizations.

He has been a member of the State Music Advisory Committee and a member of the executive board of Missouri Music Educators Association. He has served for two years as state president of Phi Beta Mu, national honorary bandmasters fraternity. He has acted as clinician and adjudicator of music festivals in Missouri and surrounding states.

Watch what happens...

Your family, like most, is experiencing a little pinch with the high cost of living. Your idea has been to round up a number of items around the house that you no longer need, but which you know would be valuable and useful to someone else.

And your idea now is to call the Classified Department and place an ad offering these items for sale.

Now . . . watch what happens!

In a day's time you'll begin receiving phone calls from people interested in buying the things you no longer need. And before you know it, you'll have that little extra cash in your hand we can all use.

That's exactly how it happens to lots and lots of homemakers . . . every day!

Franklin found guilty of careless driving

BLOOMFIELD — Ronald Leroy Franklin of Puxico was found guilty of careless and imprudent driving following a trial in Magistrate Court before Judge Koss W. Blomeyer.

Franklin was involved in a one-car accident which occurred in March on Highway 51 just south of the Puxico city limits.

The case was continued from May 2 to allow the state time to subpoena additional witnesses after the attorney for the defense asked for a dismissal due to the fact that there were no witnesses to the accident in court on that day and that the ticket was issued by a patrolman at the hospital where Franklin had been taken for treatment, who had never been to the scene of the accident and had based his information on the statements of the two ambulance drivers.

Eight additional witnesses were called in Thursday's session which included the two ambulance drivers, several witnesses who had appeared at the scene following the accident, the defendant's wife, Margie Franklin, and Debbie Foster, all of Puxico.

Mrs. Foster testified that at the time of the accident she was traveling south on Highway 51, when Franklin approached her from the rear and attempted to pass on the right. She said he then lost control of his car, darted across the highway and overturned.

Mrs. Franklin, who was following directly behind her husband in her own car, testified that when Franklin attempted to pass Mrs. Foster, she pulled over into the left lane, forcing him to pass on the right to avoid an accident with the Foster car. She said when he went off onto the shoulder of the highway, he lost control and overturned.

Judge Blomeyer ruled Franklin guilty due to the fact he attempted to pass on the right, but due to conflicting testimony of the two women, fixed the minimum fine of $15.

In another case, Jack Dewey Snider of Puxico was fined $10 and given a 60-day suspended jail sentence on a charge of possession of marijuana. He was placed on probation for six months under supervision.

Charles James Duncan of Essex was fined $10, and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of public intoxication.

Billy Gene Lusk of Dexter was fined $50 for possession of intoxicating beverage by a minor.

Ray Jensen pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing. Trial was set for May 23.

Fined for speeding were Larry David Hisaw of Dexter,$27; Johnny Dale Duke of Bloomfield, $10; James Elvis Brown of Dexter, $17; Leroy Marshall of Sikeston, $25 and Nilblads Zallaropoules of Sikeston, $16.

Paying fines for careless and imprudent driving were, Micheal Allen Caldwell of Dexter, $15; Lloyd Odum of Essex, $15; and Tony Jay McDonald of Dexter, $15.

Others paying fines for traffic violations were, Charles Ray Smith of St. Louis, no motorcycle permit, $10; Henry Harold Stevens of Bernie, expired operator's license, $10 and Ray Lee Tillman of Bell City, no operator's license, $10.

Larry Joe Hudgens of Bloomfield was fined $100 and ordered to surrender his operator's license after pleading guilty to driving while intoxicated.

Police today were investigating the theft of money from a cash register at the Kellett Oil Co. service station and the safe at the nearby Sikeston Bus Agency.

Police said $174 was taken from the bus station safe sometime between 9:30 p.m. Wednesday and 7:15 a.m. Thursday.

A sliding window was found off its track, police said, and no pry marks were found to indicate that the safe had been forced open.

NBC SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES: "Two Mules for Sister Sara"-- A woman masquerading as a nun and an American mercenary join forces in fighting the French who are in control of 19th century Mexico. Shirley MacLaine and Clint Eastwood star. (Color; repeat)

Shirley MacLaine and Clint Eastwood star in "Two Mules for Sister Sara," an adventure drama to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" May 18 (8- 10 p.m. CDT) on the NBC Television Network.

In the story, Hogan (Eastwood), tired and grimy from days of travel from Texas across Northern Mexico, acts quickly to rescue a woman dressed in a nun's habit from a band of desperadoes.

After Hogan has driven away the outlaws, Sister Sara (Miss MacLaine) reveals that she is on a mission to raise money for the Mexican Juaristas, a group that is attempting to overthrow the French who hold the country in a iron grip.

Hogan tells Sister Sara that he is an American mercenary with the Juaristas and is on his way to Chihuahua to take the French garrison in return for half the gold in the French treasury.

The two decide to join forces in capturing the garrison. Later, once Hogan is asleep, Sara examines a red satin dress folded in her saddlebags and lights up a cigar, thus revealing that her appearance as a nun is merely a clever masquerade.

The 1971 Universal release was produced by Martin Rackin and Carroll Case and directed by Don Siegel. Albert Maltz wrote the screenplay from a story by Budd Boetticher.

WOLFMAN JACK
On 'The Midnight Special'
Early Saturdays, NBC Television Network
(In Color, following Friday Presentations of
'The Tonight Show 12:00 Midnight- 1:30 a.m.
Starring Johnny Carson")

Wolfman Jack says of himself: "What I am is a combination of the campy guys of the late 1950's, all rolled into one. But it's me!"

The best example of "personality radio," Wolfman Jack is heard nightly over 1,453 radio stations in this country in addition to hundreds of stations in 42 foreign countries.

Today, his gravel- throated voice is also heard on NBC- TV's "The Midnight Special," early Saturdays 12:00 midnight- 1:30 a.m. in color) as announcer, sidekick to the various hosts and, at times, as performer.

Wolfman is not an overnight sensation. He has been in broadcasting for almost 20 years.

Born in Brooklyn, Wolfman grew up listening to the New York Rhythm and Blues stations. Before he was 10, he knew he wanted a career in radio. As a young adult, he was determined to pursue it. He worked on stations in Newport News, Va., and Shreveport, La., before going to XERF in Mexico, across the border from Del Rio, Texas, in 1957. In 1965, Wolfman moved to XERB, below Tijuana, at Rosarita Beach. With the latter two stations, Wolfman was heard in this country (both were clear channel and high wattage) and became highly successful.

"I took the name Wolfman Jack," he explains, "because there were disk jockeys with strange names like Dr. Jive and the name Jack was popular from the saying 'What's doing', Jack?' " His real name is Bob Smith.

This year he appeared in his second motion picture, "American Graffiti." He had a minor role in the film, "The Seven Minutes."

Wolfman figures his audience to be in the 18- 35 age bracket, but adds: "Due to the 'Midnight Special,' it might be stretching to 45."

He spends about five hours a day recording his radio shows in a stereo studio in his Beverly Hills, Calif., home.

PETER MARSHALL

Host of "The Hollywood Squares" Mondays- Fridays, NBC Television Network

Peter Marshall, like many other show business celebrities and executives, started his career as an NBC Page in New York City.

With a driving desire for a career as an actor, he was soon performing in plays both on and off Broadway.

He eventually starred on Broadway with Julie Harris in "Sky-scraper." Other stage successes include the lead in the London company of "Bye Bye Birdie" and an eight-month engagement in two shows -- "High Button Shoes" and "Anything Goes" -- running simultaneously in Las Vegas.

Marshall and the late Tommy Noonan teamed in a comedy act that played all the leading nightclubs across the country and they were frequent guests on the Ed Sullivan show and other television variety programs.

Early in his television career, Marshall starred in a daily one-hour New York local presentation, "Two of the Most."

In addition to acting, Marshall has done some writing. He collaborated with Dick Gautier on the screen play, "Mary Jane," and he wrote the screen story of a yet-to-be-released film, "Wild in the Sky."

Marshall has cut several records and he has starred in two motion pictures -- "Ensign Pulver" and "The Cavern."

Born Pierre La Cock, in Huntington, W. Va., Marshall changed his name for the stage, adopting a name used first by his sister, actress Joanne Dru, who subsequently dropped it for her present name.

Marshall is an avid sports fan, an expert on boxing and a well- informed pro football follower. He also is a Los Angeles Dodgers baseball backer but now must split his loyalties with the Chicago Cubs since a son, Peter, is a top-rated Cub outfielder.
